State Report Criticizes County Civil Service

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Civil Service Commission has been sharply criticized in a management survey report issued by the State Civil Service Commission which conducted the survey covering a nearly 3½ year period during January.

The report terms the county commission's examination and recruitment program "ineffective" and calls for a strengthening of procedures in regard to payroll certification.

"An unusually long time" was spent by the local commission in attempting to revise rules and rule appendices and in installing a classification plan the report further states.

However, according to Frank Greco, executive secretary of the Ulster County Civil Service Commission, more than 50 per cent of the problems mentioned in the report have been taken care of since January.

According to the state report more than one-third of "competitive class employees" (those required to take competitive Civil Service examinations) were provisional employees at the time of the survey. "The total percentage of provisional employees in Ulster County is the second highest among the counties in New York State," the report says.

"The (Ulster County) Commission has been negligent in its responsibility by not ordering examinations within one month of the making of a provisional appointment, as required by... Civil Service Law, in order to prevent provisional appointments from continuing for a period in excess of nine months," the report adds, explaining that nine months is the legal limitation for provisional appointments.

According to the report, 119 out of 204 provisional employees working at the time of the survey had been serving in excess of nine months.

In answer to a preliminary copy of the report, the local commission stated that it was not possible to request examinations as required because of personnel turnover problems.

Special

That, however, has been only part of the problem, according to Greco, who said that the State Civil Service Commission has been slow in responding to examinations requests, and slower in reporting examination results. Greco indicated that local action on examinations has been as fast or faster than state action, and said that the local commission had decided that it would be better to keep pace with the state. "We have been waiting as long as six months for some results from the state," Greco said.

He added that there are not as many provisional employees now as there were at the time of the survey.

Problems concerning certification of payrolls largely stem from the villages, towns and school districts, according to Greco.

The state report states that a check of payrolls disclosed

"many discrepancies" when compared with a commission roster record of employees of local municipalities and school districts.

In a letter accompanying the report, the state commission said the local commission is obligated to "maintain legal action against any non-complying agencies."

Greco explained that the first step would be non-certification of payrolls, and should the local fiscal officer make payment, he could be exposed to personal liability.

According to Greco, the local commission has written most towns, villages and school districts "time and time again." "They are the most uncooperative group of people I've ever seen," he said.

Previously the local commission had simply indicated the discrepancies on payrolls but had not chosen to hold them up. Now, however, it has informed the local and school governments that non-certification might result from uncorrected discrepancies, and results are improving, according to Greco.

The county has generally been cooperative in regard to the payrolls, Greco said.

Concerning revisions in Civil Service rules, Greco agreed that their preparation took longer than expected, but cited a desire to be exacting as one of the reasons.

He explained that the new rules have been adopted locally and were approved by the state on January 23.

"Many things done by the commission in the past few months have clarified much of the report," Greco said.

(Next: Allegedly "illegal" police appointments cited in the report are answered by the local commission, along with explanations why some high positions have been held on a provisional basis for extended periods.)

Referendum Defeats Democrats' Plan

City to Retain 13 Wards

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Tuesday's referendum on reapportionment answered one question decisively: the voters of Kingston want to maintain the 13-ward system—but it left wide open the ultimate question of reapportionment.

Yesterday, 3,061 voters turned out, "a very good showing for a special election," according to most political observers (about 22 per cent), and defeated the Democratic sponsored 11-ward reapportionment plan by a 1,938 to 1,147 margin. Rejection of that plan was nearly complete.

Council's Reapportionment Committee which drew up the three voting districts out of 26 plan, that the issue will now go to the courts. "Now it's up to the courts," Quick told the First Ward by a 69-53 margin, the second district by a 55-39 were in. "We (the Council) margin and the second district passed a plan and the people the 11th Ward by a 141-48 turned it down."

But Quick's major opponent on the plan, Alderman Titus B. proposition overall, by 145 to Sims (R-13th Ward), doesn't think the courts will step in the arbitrarily. "It seems to me that we will retain the present system unless someone calls for a court action," Sims said.

There is no question that the city will have to reapportion: the question now in the face of the defeat of the Common Council's plan, approved by the mayor, is when and by whom.

It is the opinion of Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward), chairman of the slate, that the issue will now go to the courts. "Now it's up to the courts," Quick told the First Ward by a 69-53 margin, the second district by a 55-39 were in. "We (the Council)

DIPLOMATIC GAFFE—While drinking a champagne toast with President Nixon, Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev spilled his champagne. The toasting was at the State Department where the two countries signed four agreements as a part of their summit meeting. (UPI Telephoto)

Summit Shifts to Nuclear Arms

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, seeking "most favored nation" tariff treatment for the Soviet Union.

There has been a move in meeting in the seclusion of this mountain retreat today shifted their summit talks to the delicate problem of controlling nuclear arms.

Fog shrouded the Alpine-style Camp David complex Tuesday night when Nixon and Brezhnev do so.

Nixon and Brezhnev opened their talks Monday in Washington and spent the first two days discussing bilateral issues. Today and Wednesday at Camp David they will survey the international scene.

White House spokesman Ron Ziegler said the talks specifically would focus on nuclear disarmament and efforts to mutually reduce conventional forces in Central Europe. He said they also were likely to touch on such areas of tension as the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

Two incidents at the Soviet mission to the United Nations tied to Brezhnev's visit to the United States. Story on page 38.

Both leaders have publicly given assurances that their talks will set forth a political framework in which detailed negotiations to control both the quality and quantity of strategic weapons can move to a speedy conclusion.

At the Moscow summit 13 months ago, they signed an agreement freezing offensive nuclear weapons for a period of five years at current levels and limiting defensive nuclear weapons to two sites in each country.

Since that time, U.S. and Soviet negotiators have been seeking to expand the agreement to more permanent limitations and to deal with the complicated problem of restricting development of missiles with multiple warheads and other sophisticated weaponry.

U.S. officials have said they do not expect a firm agreement on this issue to result from the current summit meeting but they have said it was possible political decisions would be made which would speed negotiating process and result in a new treaty within a year to 18 months.

The lunch hosted by Brezhnev Tuesday at Blair House near the White House was private, but several of the senators who attended described the proceedings to newsmen. Brezhnev delivered a two-hour speech then briefly answered questions. The meeting with the lawmakers was so long that the Soviet Leader was three-quarters of an hour late for his scheduled afternoon meeting with Nixon.

Brezhnev did not refer to Jewish emigration—which the Soviets consider an internal matter which should not concern the Americans—during his speech. But he was ready with arguments and statistics when the matter was raised by Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Robert Griffin, R-Mich.

Brezhnev said that last year out of 61,000 Jews who applied for exit permits, 60,200 were given permission to leave.

In the first five months of this year, he said, 10,100 out of 11,400 applications have been granted. In addition, he said 258 more Jews were given permission to leave earlier this month just before he departed for the United States.

Earlier Tuesday, Nixon and Brezhnev linked arms in a symbol of common purpose and toasted the signing of four new U.S.-Soviet accords. The agreements on agricultural, oceanographic, transportation and cultural exchanges were signed in the ornate 18th Century surroundings of the State Department's Benjamin Franklin room.

Lehac said he and his group were also concerned with the disposal of radioactive wastes generated by the nuclear plants. A national as well as a local movement against nuclear power plants is growing. Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, along with several concerned organizations, has instituted a suit to shut down 20 nuclear power plants across the country as a threat to life, public health, and property.

Another problem is the "stack gases" given off by the nuclear glass's findings are in some disposition process, Lehac said. He said these gases were now contained, and then released into the air when atmospheric conditions were favorable. According to Lehac, these gases are radioactive, containing such radioactive elements as Iodine 131 and Krypton 85.

Dr. Ernest Sternglass, the physics professor at the University of Pittsburgh who conducted the Shippingport, Pa., study, has found that the incidence of all types of cancer in the area of the plant rose 30 per cent between 1957-67, while the State of Pennsylvania as a whole had only a nine per cent rise.

Sternglass found that the incidence of leukemia and other cancers of the lymphatic and blood-forming system rose 70 per cent for those years. Sternglass property.

Committee Formed in New Paltz

Lloyd Atomic Plant Opposition Increasing

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ

Local opposition to the proposed nuclear power plant in the Town of Lloyd is building, and the steering committee of a scientist for Westinghouse who group calling itself the Hudson worked on the Shippingport, Pa., Valley Citizens Watch on Nu-nuclear power plant which was clear Safety (HVCWNS) was the subject of a controversial recently formed in New Paltz.

On the committee are Ned burgh physicist that showed a Lehac; Dr. Alan Harkavy, a great increase in cancer and physics professor at the State University at New Paltz; and Dr. Alan Schwartz, a veteran.

According to Lehac, the main purpose of the HVCWNS is to teach alternate sources of energy to inform others, of Lehac's wife, Jane Sherman, the progress of the Lloyd site.

Lehac is a veteran of the nuclear power wars. He was chairman of the Lower Cape Committee only from an accident point of view, but what happens when positional which successfully fought the plant is in operation." He said his group will distribute "pertinent and important literature from conservation groups and Congress" to further the educational aim.

The site of the proposed Lloyd power plant is being developed by the New York State Atomic and Space Development Authority (ASDA). Lehac said his group would be present at all meetings ASDA held on the plant in the area to present the anti-nuclear power plant point of view.

Though Lehac outlined many hazards of nuclear power plants to The Freeman, the blowing up of a plant was not one of them. He said they didn't blow up.

Development Hits Snag in Tivoli

By TIM SCHUSTER

TIVOLI
The Meadowcrest housing development on Woods Road has hit a snag, and a lawsuit has been filed.
Builders Lafko Associates and Cornell Builders, who own property in the development along Woods Road and have built several houses in the area, have claimed that the village's zoning law is not binding because of its method of adoption.
Village Clerk Dora Gruntler said that, of course, the members of the village board feel the recently passed zoning law was adopted in accordance with the law.

Trustee Robert Barrett had this description of the basic problem: Lafko and Cornell are having trouble because the measurements were off on the land they bought, and they have ended up building their houses on the property lines.
Thus, the move to have the zoning law declared invalid as it would be quite a job to move all those houses now.

In other village business addressed by the board this week, Barrett noted that the State Labor Department would force the village to close down the third floor of its firehouse, and recommended that the floor be sealed off from within.
It was stated a year ago that the village would investigate the possibility of fixing the large interior on the third floor for public use, but it was deemed too costly.
Zoning Enforcement Officer Joel Ciancanelli requested that he be furnished a definition of what is expected of him under the building code, as he is also building inspector for the village.

A list of buildings felt to be in need of inspection was furnished to Mayor Mortimer Appel, including several in the vicinity of Broadway and Montgomery Street intersection. Ciancanelli wanted the authority to inspect the interior of buildings assured him prior to his research.
The persisting problem of getting cable television service to the village was reviewed, with Mayor Appel noting that he had spoken with John Barry of Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.'s office to check with the Federal Communications Commission on Kingston Cablevision's right to continue installation in Northern Dutchess.

He was informed that the application was filed with the FCC in April, and should be clearing soon. Kingston Cablevision was supposed to have service furnished by July 1 under a six-month extension granted by the village, but it now appears as if that deadline cannot be met.
The village may implement the Rent-A-Kid program for the first time this summer if two young persons to run the 26-hour a week office to coordinate the activity can be found.

And the Recreation Commission has received $1,000 state aid for busing children to Red Hook Recreation Park for swimming in a seven-week program this summer.
Signs entering the village have long proclaimed that speeders will be detected by radar and a request from Patrolman Reginald Moore for a three month rental trial period for radar for the police car may back that statement up. The board approved a trial, pending notification of the costs.

Carbon Dioxide Poisoning Killed Two on Sub

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A medical examiner said today that two scientists died of carbon dioxide poisoning while trapped in their tiny research submarine 360 feet on the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean.

"They just went unconscious and died," said Dr. A. J. Fernandez, the Monroe County medical examiner, who estimated the men had been dead 46 hours when he examined their bodies around 11 p.m. Tuesday.

A physician aboard the mother ship of the submarine, Dr. David Youngblood, earlier had blamed the deaths on "cold exposure."

Fernandez said after his three-hour examination of the bodies at Key Memorial Hospital that Al Stover, 51, Juno Beach, Fla., and Clayton Link, 31, Binghamton, N. Y., died about the same time.

Two other crewmen aboard the 21-foot submarine which got snared Sunday in the cables of an old destroyer off Sugar Loaf Key while studying marine life survived the 31-hour ordeal on the ocean floor.

Fernandez estimated time of death would have been about 16 hours before the sub was brought to the surface at 4:55 p.m. Monday. It was also some 11 hours before the survival deadline calculated Sunday by Link's father, Edwin A. Link, inventor of the sub. The elder Link had said the men probably would die if they weren't rescued before the sub's supply of a chemical called barralime, which absorbs carbon dioxide, ran out about noon Monday.

A drop in the temperature decreases the absorbency of the chemical, making it less effective in combatting carbon dioxide buildup. The temperature in the rear cabin occupied by Link and Stover fell to 40-45 degrees during the sub's imprisonment and it was first thought the men died of the prolonged chill.

Youngblood said Tuesday that it would have been "tantamount to suicide" for the two men to swim out of their cabin and try to reach the surface on their own because "they were so deep and had built up such a high decompression time."

The bodies of the two men were removed from the cabin late Tuesday night after the sub underwent prolonged decompression and detoxification in hopes they still might have been alive.

The survivors, Dr. Robert Meek, 27, of Santa Barbara, Calif., an ichthyologist, and Archibald "Jack" Menzies, 30, Vero Beach, Fla., pilot of the sub, the Johnson-Sea-Link, were pronounced in good condition after slight decompression Monday. They were dropped off at an undisclosed spot before the Sea Diver docked Tuesday so they could rest and be with their families.

Meek and Menzies were in the forward cabin of the sub which got caught in the wreckage of a scuttled World War I destroyer while the men were studying fish life for the Smithsonian Institution Sunday.

Link, father of an 18-month-old son, and Stover, who had seven sons, were in the rear compartment, which has an egress hatch for scuba diving excursions.

The front, a viewing bubble, is made of plastic while the rear cabin is made of aluminum. That may have been the fatal difference. Aluminum loses heat faster than plastic and the temperature in the rear chamber fell to 45 degrees on the ocean bottom. Youngblood said Stover and Link died of "cold exposure." Meek and Menzies apparently did not get chilled.

Dean Tells Investigators About Ehrlichman's Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III told Senate investigators that John D. Ehrlichman urged him to pressure the CIA into providing assistance—apparently for a cover-up—nine days after the Watergate break-in, it was learned today.

According to sources close to the case, Dean told investigators Saturday that Ehrlichman, one of President Nixon's top two advisors until his recent resignation, asked him to pressure Deputy CIA Director Vernon Walters because Walters "owes allegiance to the White House."

Sources told UPI that Dean's preliminary testimony to the committee staff also included these points:

—Dean said that in early 1972 he told H. R. Haldeman, then White House chief of staff, that he had attended two meetings in the office of then Attorney General John N. Mitchell at which political espionage and wiretapping were discussed.

Jan. 27 and Feb. 4, 1972.

—Haldeman replied, according to Dean, that Dean should stay "out of it"—apparently meaning that Dean should not become involved in such plans.

—Dean said he thought all the plans discussed at the two meetings were rejected and he knew no more about wiretapping the Democrats until June 17 when five men were arrested inside Democratic headquarters.

—NBC News said a seven-page summary of Dean's testimony quoted Dean as saying Ehrlichman informed him that President Nixon agreed to grant executive clemency to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

—NBC also said the summary showed Nixon was aware that Hunt had demanded to be paid $122,000.

Dean said the meetings were

ing to Dean, Watergate

Prosecutor Archibald Cox gave the government's evidence so far gathered against Dean to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, to be kept under seal for use in any possible trial against him. The purpose was to make clear that evidence was not based on testimony Dean is to give the Senate committee next week. He will testify under an agreement that his Senate testimony cannot be used against him.

The New York Times reported Tuesday that the Watergate committee is investigating the personal finances of those involved in the bugging and cover-up to see if any 1972 Republican campaign funds went into individual pockets. The action followed testimony by Dean to the committee that he "borrowed" Republican funds to finance his honeymoon.

GAS SAVER — Mechanic Bob Bone points to device he installed on automobile engine which he says will cut gasoline consumption by about 20 per cent. The device which he invented fits between the carburetor and air intake valve and sprays the gas instead of letting it flow in. It has been installed on 10 Morton Grove, Ill., police cars and has saved 450 gallons off the normal 3,000 gallon monthly total. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Watergate Scandal Hurts GOP Treasury

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican National Committee has sent out an urgent appeal for contributions that acknowledges the party is in trouble because of the Watergate scandal.

GOP officials repeatedly have said that the party organization would not be the loser in Watergate because it was not involved in 1972 wrongdoing or cover-up attempts.

In the new appeal for money, the chairman of the Republican National Finance Committee said once again that no one has suggested the organization "is even remotely connected to Watergate."

But David K. Wilson, in a June 15 letter to potential contributors, said "The Republican party is in trouble. We need your help."

"The deplorable Watergate scandal, in which a few misguided political adventurers exercised extraordinarily bad judgment and performed asorted questionable acts, has cast a pall of suspicion over the activities of the entire Republican party," Wilson said.

Just exactly what the dollars-and-cents impact of Watergate has been on the GOP committee's fund-raising is difficult to pin down.

Quarterly reports filed with the General Accounting Office last week show, at least through May 31, that the Republican National Committee was maintaining its traditional two-to-one edge over Democrats in fund raising.

Republican officials said in earlier interviews that their direct mail efforts were running ahead of the comparable off-year election period in 1971 and apparently had been unaffected by Watergate. Small contributors reached through these efforts account for 80 to 90 per cent of all contributions, GOP officials said.

But the committee conceded that in the $1,000-and-up category, contributions were off 25 to 50 per cent. They said the $135,000 taken in from large contributors through May 31 was far short of the $1 million goal for the year in large gifts.

Robert P. Odell Jr., treasurer of the Republican finance committee, said the decision to send out a special appeal June 15 was made after earlier disappointing response from large contributors.

"We decided to go back and hit them over the head with Watergate," said Odell.

Shootout in Atlanta... Two Killed, Three Wounded

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two men were killed and three others wounded Tuesday in a gun battle between Atlanta police and a group of blacks accused of trying to force passersby to buy Black Muslim newspapers.

One of the fatalities was Patrolman Larry Barkwell. Another policeman, Sgt. Julius Dericco Jr., was wounded.

Officers refused to identify the suspected Black Muslim who was killed, or two of the other wounded persons, who included a department store security guard.

Detectives charged Johnny Lee Chambliss, 25, one of the wounded, with murder in Barkwell's death.

Lt. B. L. Nelkirk, head of the investigation, said he believed other persons would be arrested as a result of the midday shooting.

"We believe there may be some fugitives still at large and anticipate some arrests," Nelkirk said. "It is very possible there may eventually be more than one person charged with the murder."

Barkwell, a four-year-veteran whose twin brother is a policeman in nearby Powder Springs, was one of four policemen asking the blacks to stop harrasing passersby on the busy street when, according to police chief John Inman, "it erupted into a shooting match."

According to police and several eyewitnesses, one of the vendors seized the hip pistol of one of the policemen and began firing.

About a dozen shots were fired. One witness, Mrs. Connie Olsen, said she tried to take shelter in surrounding shops but was refused admittance by frightened store owners.

When an ambulance arrived, a crowd of people pressed into the street, protesting that the policemen were being taken away before the others. Police arrested several persons in the angry crowd on charges of aggravated assault.

Jug Hill Center... 'Outdoor Classroom'

CLINTON HOLLOW
Pre-school and primary grade children from throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley have been first hand witnesses to the wonders of nature at Jug Hill this year.

A nature center located on Meadowbrook Lane in this Northern Dutchess community Jug Hill is comprised of 90 acres of varied habitats, including a five-acre pond, a stream, fields in various stages of succession, marsh, swampland, and woodlands.

Children are encouraged to explore the pond, fields, and forest with their teachers. They may catch turtles, snakes or frogs; discover birds' nests; pick and taste wild mint; go on salamander, seed or rock hunts; or choose to play freely in the grassy meadow or in sand and water.

C. W. Post College Coed Is Found Dead in Room

GREENVALE, N. Y. (UPI)—A man's white shirt were loose tied about her throat. She was barefoot and wore a light colored blouse, blue jeans and yellow sweater.

Edward F. Curran, Nassau County chief of detectives, said there were no signs of a struggle, forced entry to the room or sexual assault. He said a number of knives in the room, including a serrated steak knife found near the body, were taken to the police laboratory for examination.

The exact cause of death, Curran said, will not be known until an autopsy is performed.

The purpose of the excursions, which often include a picnic or cookout, is to help young children become more aware of the natural environment as they play and enjoy the outdoors, according to Esther Kiviat, director of Jug Hill.

Mrs. Kiviat is an early childhood teacher who has worked in outdoor education with children and their teachers for 25 years. She also has been director of the nursery-primary division of the Walden School in New York City; assistant professor of nursery education at Dutchess Community College; and director of a summer camp for young children.

Among schools visiting the nature center of late are the Northern Dutchess Day Care Center of Red Hook; Rondout Day Care and Head Start Center, Kingston; Hyde Park Nursery School; and Stanford Cooperative Nursery School.

Other groups that participated in Jug Hill trips earlier in the spring included pre-schoolers from the Dutchess Community College Laboratory Nursery School; kindergarten, first and second graders from the Poughkeepsie Day School; and juniors from the Poughkeepsie Family Development and Day Care Center.

In July and August, 25 children ranging in age from three to seven years will participate in a nature oriented day camp at Jug Hill.

A small nature museum in a former dairy barn on the property provides live exhibits such as turtles, newts, tadpoles, fish, white mice and a miniature woodland habitat in a terrarium. Children are encouraged to smell, touch and investigate freely on a "sensory table" in the museum. According to Mrs. Kiviat, young children learn primarily through concrete experiences involving the use of all their senses.

They may express their discoveries with art materials such as paint and clay, find books in the Jug Hill library to supplement their outdoor experiences, or cook and taste wild foods.

Jug Hill is a place that children remember.

Rondout Board Adopts 'Special' Plan

KYSERIKE
The Rondout Valley School Board Tuesday night unanimously adopted a new plan for special education programs put forth by Robert Robertaccio, superintendent of schools.

Robertaccio told the board that he had redesigned the special education program around a "resource center" concept in which elementary and middle school students with special problems will spend most of their time in regular classes and will be scheduled into the resource center when special help is indicated.

The new concept parallels the latest thinking in adult therapies where every effort is now made to maintain the subject in a home atmosphere whenever possible, he said.

Keeping the students in their own schools at all times and in their own classes as much as possible will eliminate about two hours of daily bus travel under the old system, with each of the district's four elementary schools maintaining its own resource center.

The board tabled until its July 2 reorganizational meeting the purchase of a computer to handle billing, check writing, payrolls, and other school district functions. Purchase of the machine has been the subject of litigation for more than a year, Robertaccio said.

The Olivetti Corporation was with opponents going to court to prevent the district from purchasing the computer outside the school budget. The 1973-74 budget has $20,000 earmarked for a computer purchase, he said.

The relocation of the garage will not take place until next year.

The society trustees stated they were "shocked" by the proposed move of the garage to an area adjacent to the historic stone houses on Huguenot Street, a major tourist attraction. In addition to the alleged hazard to pedestrians afoot in the historic area, the society trustees said the old stone houses, which date back to the 1600s, had already been damaged by 20th century truck traffic.

"They (the stone houses) are so close to the road that plaster has been cracked from the vibrations and pebbles thrown up by truck tires have broken the old hand-made glass," said the society statement. "The situation is bad now and location of the village garage at the proposed site would surely make it worse."

There is a village ordinance against truck traffic in the stone house area of Huguenot Street, but the society says it is not enforced, with a number of trucks using the street to avoid the stop light at Main and Chestnut Streets.

The stone houses are a National Historic Landmark, and the society says visitors to the area are "frequently endangered by trucks and buses that do not observe stop signs and speed regulations." The society pointed out that groups of school children and senior citizens are especially vulnerable.

It is proposed that the village garage be located on the tract which presently houses the village sewer treatment plant. Kenneth E. Hasbrouck, president of the society, has stated that the society fears more buildings might be added to the area, and the flats between Huguenot Street and the Wallkill River might become "a single great unsightly work area."

DuBois told The Freeman Tuesday that the opposition of the Huguenot Historical Society was the first the proposed line with Phase II controls, Robertaccio said. The board accepted with regret the retirement of Mrs. Marion Hasbrouck, a teacher at the Marbltown Elementary School. Mrs. Hasbrouck taught custodial and cafeteria workers in the district schools for more than 25 years.

He said the village board was "checking into it now," and might seek alternative locations for the new garage.

The Gossip Column by Robin Adams Sloan

CHIANG: The Red network??!!

Q: Now that manager Allan Klein is out of the picture is there a chance that the Beatles will be reunited? — T. MacG., Bridgeport, Conn.

A: We've heard that the four have all turned in tracks for an album that's supposed to be released this summer. This will be their first release since "Let It Be" three years ago. There is some hope for a reunion since insiders believe Klein was the reason that Paul McCartney would never consider rejoining the group. We know the Beatles are considering a fabulous offer from a British group to give a one-day concert at Aintree Racetrack.

Q: Now that we've established relationships with Red China, what about Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalists on Taiwan? Any chance he'll pick up the peace pipe? — I.C. Downey, Calif.

A: The first overture was made last week when the Communists invited the Nationalists to come over and play table tennis. In addition, there are rumors that Chang Shih-chao, one of Mao's favorite elder statesmen, is attempting to arrange a meeting with a top Nationalist government official.

Q: Someone told me that Betty Friedan has made an enormous amount of money out of the Women's Lib Movement. Is this true? — O.G., Seattle, Wash.

A: No, she hasn't. Ms. Friedan earns her living writing and lecturing. However, her financial tide may be turning. Betty and a group of feminists are planning to open the first all-woman bank in Manhattan this fall. The bank will provide all the usual services including loans and mortgages that other banks don't like to offer women.

SCANDAL OF THE MONTH: The call girl to-do in London has already wrecked the political careers of two members of the British House of Lords and may yet have international repercussions.

Scotland Yard believes there are at least 20 more photos of VIP's in compromising situations. And it's possible these photos include foreign and U.S. diplomats as well as Britishers. It is also known that the London vice operation was part of an international call-girl network in Berlin, Brussels, New York and Detroit. West German security police believe the East Europeans have been training call girls as espionage agents and some of them may be part of this vice ring.

Q: I know that both of Carol Burnett's parents were alcoholics. Is she bitter about this? — T.T., Hudson, N.Y.

A: Carol doesn't seem to be. Her father's name was Jody and that's the name of her middle daughter, the 6-year-old.

POTENTIAL SCANDAL OF THE WEEK: If the mother of a

New York dancer could be persuaded to tell the identity and what she knows about her daughter's famous and occasional lover... wow! Watergate would be just a dim memory.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 20, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Personal friends who have visited President Nixon lately have found him more annoyed than dispirited over the Watergate revelations. What annoys him is the time Watergate has taken from his preparations for the summit meeting with Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev.

The President believes he established an understanding with Brezhnev in Moscow last year. They now trust one another enough to proceed with meaningful negotiations, the President suggests. After Nixon's return from Iceland, he appeared haggard. But he explains this wasn't from worry over Watergate but from lack of sleep in Iceland. He found it difficult to sleep in the land of the midnight sun because even the blinds couldn't shut out the brightness at night.

Friends who ask how they can help with the Watergate problem get only an appreciative shrug from the President but no specific suggestions. He will leave it to them, he says, to decide what statements they wish to make in his support.

The mention of John Mitchell or Bob Halderman causes the President merely to shake his head, as if he doesn't know what to think of his two former close advisors. The President insists he had no advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in or the obstruction of justice.

"Stupid," is the kindest word he has for the Waterbugging. He recalls that he thought the best politics last year was to attend to the presidency, that he left the political tactics to "the boys."

But to all who ask, Richard Nixon makes one thing perfectly clear. He has no intention of resigning.

Fish Tale
For guppy lovers at the highest reaches of government, the taxpayers provide pet fish and an aquarist to attend them.

The aforesaid aquarist, known less loftily as a fish-tank tender, is Floyd Crawford. His calling in life is to service some 40 fish tanks that the National Aquarium has loaned to senators, representatives and other pampered poobahs of government.

Some of the fanciest fish — Blue Moons, Angel Fish and Kissing Gouramis — have been consigned to Vice President Agnew's domain. It's not Agnew who is infatuated with Kissing Gouramis, we have been informed, but his aides.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler, who refers to his liberal critics as "bleeding hearts," appropriately keeps Bleeding Heart Tetras in his office aquarium. However, the efficient Ziegler won't permit his office routine to be interrupted by the care and feeding of his blushing fish. The visiting aquarist has strict instructions never to tend Ziegler's fish tank while the great man is in the office.

Perhaps the most menacing pet in the federal fishery is a miniature Black Shark on loan to George Gauzza, the Interior Department's boss of management operations.

But of all Washington's famous fish fanciers, none was more devoted than the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover, whose bulldog visage and staccato speech were the terror of crooks and Communists. But he was a softie when it came to his pet goldfish.

At the first chill of winter, he would deliver his special goldfish to the National Aquarium to be looked after during the cold. But as soon as the weather warmed, Hoover's personal bodyguard would appear to pick up the golden dandies. If one of his goldfish appeared ill, Hoover would order an aide to call the Aquarium for a diagnosis.

The aquarium is besieged with calls from bigwigs about their fish problems. One may want a red fish to go with the office decor. Others want their fish tanks moved from one side of the room to another, a maneuver that requires four men. One congressional office called six times in a single day about the illness of some Siamese fighting fish.

Once, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., demanded a salt water tank, in which he wanted to display clams, lobsters and other marine life native to his home state. The fish experts finally talked him out of it.

Every morning, Aquarist Floyd Crawford climbs into his official government truck and begins his rounds. On a typical day, he might drop off some food for Indiana Sen. Vance Hartke's Australian Rainbows, then clean out Hawaii Sen. Daniel Inouye's fish tank.

In answer to an anxious call from Ohio Rep. William Mishall's office, Crawford might examine the congressman's red Swordtails and pronounce them sick with ich. Then he might stop by Pennsylvania Rep. Joseph McDade's office and dip out a dead Angel Fish for a squeamish secretary.

Then he might drive downtown to inspect the aquarium of the Interior Department's communications director, Robert Kelly, who is down to two fish and is complaining about it. Next, there are fish tanks at the U.S. Information Agency and General Services Administration that need tending.

There's one fish story the folks at the National Aquarium would rather not talk about. They supplied a government bigshot, whose name they don't or won't recall, with a tank full of African Rift Lake Cichlids. The official bred some little ones and then had the audacity to ask the Aquarium to purchase them from him.

Footnote: A spokesman claimed that the fish tank program is being phased out. The National Aquarium will not service tanks that change hands, he said, and will install no new ones.

Watergate Beleaguers Nixon

"Be Sure and Keep Your Overshoes on, That's Hot Water!"

Inside Report

Anti-Dean Campaign

By ROWLAND EVANS
and
ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The unrelenting onslaught by presidential defenders against the credibility of President Nixon's deposed White House counsel, John W. Dean III, partly rests on shaky factual foundations about Dean's activities during those frantic April days when the Watergate scandal broke open.

Contrary to published reports, federal prosecutors say Dean never told them in April that he had no evidence linking Mr. Nixon with the Watergate cover-up. Contrary to claims by Nixon defenders, Dean offered to tell all to federal investigators in return for immunity from prosecution before, not after, Mr. Nixon decided to fire him.

Moreover, Dean's lawyers claim that the torrent of personal innuendo about Dean amounts to calculated libels intended to demolish him as a witness.

At stake, is whether Dean is believed or not when he testifies before the Senate Watergate committee. Of all former presidential aides involved in the scandal, only Dean threatens to wrap Mr. Nixon in the guilt of Watergate. Therefore, the White House and other Nixon defenders have campaigned furiously, with remarkable success, against Dean's reputation and credibility.

But this campaign's shaky factual foundations, while not insuring the truth of Dean's largely undocumented charges, suggest he should not be written off in advance as irresponsible and unreliable.

A major contention in the anti-Dean campaign is that he began accusing Mr. Nixon of complicity in the Watergate cover-up only after being fired by the President. Some Nixon defenders in the press have written that Dean first told prosecutors during sessions with them in April he had no evidence to link the President with Watergate.

In fact, according to highly-placed figures in the Watergate prosecution, Dean did not then tell prosecutors he had no information to incriminate Mr. Nixon, but merely that he had no information he was prepared to give them at that time.

According to intimates, Dean had not yet decided how much he could say of possible demands of executive privilege, the attorney-client relationship and national security.

The charge that Dean offered to tell all only after Mr.

Nixon discovered his part in the conspiracy comes from former Nixon aide Charles W. Colson, emerging as the President's leading public defender.

Colson told ABC commentator Howard K. Smith June 6 that he and his new law partner, David Shapiro, "presented information for the President" on April 13 recommending Dean be fired. "It's no small coincidence that the next day," said Colson, "Mr. Dean . . . went to the U.S. attorney's office seeking immunity."

In fact, however, Dean's immunity negotiations with U.S. prosecutors, covering eight separate late-night and weekend sessions, started April 2, eleven days before the Colson-Shapiro recommendation.

All the while there have been underground columns on Dean's character peddled around Washington. All, including contradictory rumors that he is homosexual and goes to massage parlors, are without apparent basis in fact.

More significantly, Dean's lawyers also deny a far more widely circulated and far more damaging report. In early May, CBS quoted one of his lawyers as saying Dean was seeking immunity to avoid jail because he feared sexual assault. That report has been widely repeated, in and out of print, to make Dean a figure of ridicule and contempt here. But his lawyers call it absolutely false, telling us they did not deny it originally for fear the denial would only spread the report.

The anti-Dean campaign has experienced conspicuous success. Even some leading Democratic Senators now ridicule his impact as a witness on grounds his dishonesty is a proven fact. Highly-placed federal prosecutors also say privately that Dean's failing credibility will play a part in the government's eventual decision whether to continue denying him immunity and thus pass up his full testimony.

Even without a campaign against him, the 34-year-old Dean would be hard put to make himself believed against the combined denials of Colson, H. R. (Bob) Halderman, John Ehrlichman, perhaps John Mitchell, and, of course, the President. Nevertheless, the campaign against Dean based in part on faulty information suggests he is not quite so irrelevant as the President's defenders publicly claim. If he seems credible before the Ervin committee the nightmare of the Watergate scandal will grow still bleaker.

The Orangutan Came Calling

"For God's sake don't mention my name as I now have all the trouble of a man can stand. My daughter, who graduates from high school this year, has, for days, been describing her escort to the Senior Prom as 'The Brain'; 'My Hero'; 'A Dreamboat'; 'A Living Doll'; and 'The Man.' Last night I saw him."

"Mr. Bishop, the night of the prom arrived, the doorbell rang, and as I opened the door there stood a creature that was a cross between an ape, and one of the Smith Brothers or a House of David ballplayer. His features were obscured by a motley mass of hair on his face; the hair on his head flowed below his shoulders."

"I could not understand why this creature was at my house so I inquired 'What do you want?' As near as I can remember, he yelled: 'Hiya, Dad. Tell your slick chick that The Man is here and come quick as I have some bread to spread.'"

"My Irish temper got the better of me. I yelled: 'I'm not your dad and I'm mad. Now Hip. I'm going to fatten your lip.' My fist hit his chin and he decked him. I went for a kitchen knife. My wife and daughter screamed 'Don't kill him!' The punk got off the floor and raced to a hot rod."

"Now, Mr. Bishop, the lights went on in the neighbors' houses. My daughter wept: 'Now you've really fixed it so I can't graduate. I can't go to school or church any more; I can't get another boyfriend. I wish I could die.' She slammed her bedroom door."

"When our bedroom door closed, my wife said: 'We've been married for many years, but I must admit that I don't understand you.' I don't understand you either," I said, "aiding and abetting a friendship that could wind up in marriage and produce apes instead of grandchildren."

The rest of the letter says that, since this event, his wife and daughter eat breakfast before he does so that they won't have to say good morning. Worse, they clipped a column I wrote about my daughters and left it beside his orange juice. This man, who lives in Texas, says that if I'm so damn great to please tell him what to do."

I don't write a love column. Mine consists of generalized nonsense. In addition, as a father, I have made all the mistakes and invented a few. However, it doesn't require wisdom to know that this particular daddy is wrong."

Admit it — nobody is good even if the crumb is bald. She's your precious personal property and anyone who threatens to break that up is, as you say, a "punk."

She's 18. She has a degree of maturity. She lives in a culture where girls show everything and boys show nothing except noses. Either she embraces that culture, or she becomes friendless — a weirdo."

Daughters usually start out by dating the first orangutan who asks, because females are insecure. It doesn't matter what he looks like. Let her go. And make sure she is never quite ready when he calls, so that you have a chance to chat with him."

When another charmer asks for a date, she'll dump the first one. There will be a third. And a fourth. Remember your own dates? Or is it too far back to recall how you bounced from one girl to another?"

All of us do it. The rare pair meets in elementary school and some day marries. Treat each boy with the same smiling spurious respect he accords to you. Let your wife worry about the difference between what girls promise and what they deliver. She'll divine it all — even when your daughter is lying."

If, next year, the youth culture turns to very long dresses for girls and shaven skulls for boys, you will still complain. In this house, we always meet the boy and give him a friendly hand. Some look like Mary Pickford in sneakers. But I know my place and my girls know theirs. I always make certain that I know where they are going, allow them a reasonable time to get home, and I know his name and his father's phone number."

Your daughter must be allowed freedom of choice and responsibility. There is a point where daddy must stop trying to think for his kids. In addition, the young must make their mistakes. I could be hanged for some of mine."

So, chin up, my friend. It may be difficult for you to apologize. Maybe it sticks in your throat. If so, when you see this column, buy three copies of the paper. Clip the column, write, "Okay. Let's try again," and lay one on your daughter's bed and one on your wife's. Save the third for Junior. When he shows up, paste it on his beard upside down so he can read it."

Good night Dear Abby, wherever you are . . .

Dutchess Board Funds Programs

HYDE PARK — The Town of Hyde Park has received matching funds through the Dutchess County Youth Board for two youth recreation programs.

One program provides a roller skating program for all youths in the Hyde Park school district and the second establishes a summer swim program. Funds are channeled from the State Division for Youth.

The school district will contribute the building facility, Haviland Junior High School, and utilities for roller skating with the Hyde Park Recreation Commission to supply the needed personnel and equipment.

Eymard Seminary is contributing the use of its pool for community use. It will be the only pool in the area available for public use. The program will begin July 2 and end Aug. 24.

"This is the kind of cooperation between state, county and local levels of government that is sometimes needed to get an effective recreation program going," said Saul Lazarus, member of the Youth Board's Proposal Committee. "We are very pleased to have made possible a program which will serve approximately 5,800 youths in the Hyde Park Area."

speaker; Glenn Stampfle, president and Fred Firtenburg vice-president and secretary. The meeting was held at the Kirkland Hotel. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Uptown Businessmen Reelect Stampfle

KINGSTON — Glen Stampfle was reelected president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association at the association's annual dinner at the Kirkland Hotel Tuesday night, beginning his second, one-year, term in office.

Also reelected were Charles C. Rider, vice president; Fred Firtenburg, vice president-secretary and Ronald Every, treasurer.

Guest speaker was Dr. James Loricchio, assistant professor of business at Ulster County Community College.

Loricchio, a teacher at the college for the past three years, spoke on services available to the business community from the college and also on a survey conducted by him and a colleague in the math department at UCCC. R. Alvin Vaughn, entitled "Student Attitudes Toward Selected Business Related Concepts." The survey, conducted among some 60 students in the college liberal arts and business classes, was completed two years ago.

The survey questioned student attitudes on such topics as believability of advertising, salesmanship as a career, government intrusions into business, social responsibility of business, the image of business as an institution and the state sales tax. "Generally speaking," Dr. Loricchio said, "we found students had a positive attitude toward business."

In speaking of the services the college has to offer, Dr. Loricchio spoke of the management institute, insurance seminars, numerous real estate courses, money and banking and bookkeeping for the small business. "We try to offer a flexible program," the guest speaker said. "We are open to suggestion. If there's a service requested and sufficient interest is shown, we will try to offer it."

Stampfle, in his annual address to his associates, noted the numerous successful promotions the business association has undertaken and also expressed optimism that the first phase of the Pike Plan for the renovation of the business area into a turn of the century motif, being carried out by the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, would be completed this year.

Telex-IBM Trial... Judge Needs Time

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The judge in the Telex-IBM trial needs more time to issue a tentative ruling in the computer case even though final arguments ended Tuesday in U. S. District Court.

Judge A. Sherman Christensen said he needed more time to study exhibits and clear some points troubling him.

Arguments resumed Monday after a three-week recess following a six-week trial in which Telex charged IBM with using unfair means to monopolize the industry and IBM accused Telex of industrial espionage.

Christensen of Salt Lake City, said earlier he hoped to give a tentative ruling immediately after closing arguments.

Christensen said he would not release any information concerning his decision until he can file his complete ruling.

After the announcements, the judge called an informal "work session" with Telex and IBM attorneys in the courtroom to help clear some of his remaining questions.

In closing arguments, Telex attorney Floyd Walker said Telex was like an injured animal.

"Once you cut the throat of an animal, sure, it is going to kick and thrash around before it dies," he said.

Walker admitted Telex had problems with hiring, financial backing and manufacturing, but he claimed the problems arose after IBM began its "predatory" marketing tactics.

Telex would never make its own central processing units unless there was some release in the marketplace, he said.

He contended evidence clearly established that IBM knew when it announced its fixed term, leasing plan its competitors would be forced to reduce prices below viability and would eventually be forced out of the market.

He further accused IBM of discriminatory pricing, claiming the company cut prices on one of its peripheral models to force competitors to reduce prices but retained higher prices on models locked into long-term leases.

Dog Bites City Girl, 3

KINGSTON — A three-year-old girl was bitten on the face Tuesday evening by a dog while walking with her mother on Hone Street, Kingston police reported.

She was first taken to Kingston Hospital and then transferred to Albany Medical Center Hospital where she was treated and released for multiple lacerations of the right cheek.

The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Nichols.

Police said the animal, which had been loose, was tied by its owner following the incident.

Rocky Dropping Oyster Bay Bridge Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowing to community pressures and the political realities, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said today he was dropping his plan for construction of a bridge over Long Island Sound between Rye and Oyster Bay.

"After long and careful consideration and review of all the factors concerned, I have decided to discontinue plans for the construction of the Rye-Oyster Bay Bridge," he said in a statement released to the news media.

"Accordingly, I have directed the New York State Department of Transportation and have requested the Metropolitan Transportation Authority to cease planning work on the bridge and to withdraw pending applications pertaining to that project."

The proposed span had long been a pet project of the governor's and he had vetoed a legislative attempt to repeal the MTA's authorization to build it.

Reminder On Insurance Law Issued

NEW YORK (AP) — State Superintendent of Insurance Benjamin Schenck says some insurance companies are not abiding by a new law requiring them to renew expiring auto insurance policies.

Schenck issued a reminder Tuesday that the companies could face departmental action if they do not comply with the provision of the state's new no-fault insurance law.

He said insurers must rescind nonrenewal notices already sent to those whose existing policies expire on or after Aug. 1.

Under the new law, which takes effect next Feb. 1, the only grounds on which a company may decline to renew a personal auto policy are non-payment of premium or loss of a driver's license or vehicle registration.

Martha Vents Fury on Reporter

NEW YORK (AP) — Fury got the best of Martha Mitchell Tuesday night when she struck a reporter outside her Fifth Avenue apartment building after chastising the newsman for crowding her freedom.

"You know you're disgusting because you are imposing on me," Mrs. Mitchell said in the first of two trips downstairs to tell off the Associated Press reporter.

"When I get out of this, the press is going down the line!" she vowed.

In her second appearance, Mrs. Mitchell hit the reporter twice on the top of the head with her open hand and then threatened to "smash the hell" out of her if the reporter set foot on her doorstep.

Minutes earlier, the wife of the former U.S. attorney general grabbed her doorman's hat and flung it at the reporter, hitting her in the face. The reporter was unhurt.

Mrs. Mitchell returned inside nearly an hour later, after her daughter and another young woman arrived in a chauffeured car and led her, still shouting, into the building.

Five Killed In Explosion

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The five men aboard a Navy early warning radar plane had no chance to get out alive when the plane crashed and exploded into small pieces Tuesday in Chesapeake Bay 100 yards off the Norfolk coast, witnesses said.

"I looked up and it was getting lower and lower," said Martha Waterfield, who saw the E-2B Hawkeye plunge into the bay. "Then, all of a sudden, it just hit and it looked like it exploded."

Killed were pilot Lt. Randall M. Moore, 32, copilot Edward W. Cassell, 25, and Lt. Arthur T. Dunn, 27, all of Virginia Beach, Va.; and Ens. Howard E. Wagoner, 22, of Norfolk. The fifth victim has not yet been identified.

CBA Sets Meeting

The regularly scheduled meeting of the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association, set for June 19, was postponed due to the city referendum on re-apportionment. The businessmen will meet on June 17 at 8 p.m. at Scholars on Broadway.

Two Persons Arrested In Westchester Raid

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. — Marijuana and "thousands of pills"—amphetamines and barbiturates—in the raid. Arrested, he said, were Raymond Carl Bretts, 28, and his wife Judith Inez, 25.

Lawson did not say how big their alleged operation was but described the two as "heavy drug dealers" and said their investigation said he and other arrests would "definitely put a dent in southern Westchester worth of pure cocaine worth 'many thousands more' on the street, in addition to some after a two-month investigation conducted by Lawson and Investigator Roger Fairchild of the BCI at Poughkeepsie.

The investigation culminated, Lawson said, when one of the agents reportedly bought some cocaine from the couple. The agents then obtained a search warrant and raided the apartment, seizing the drugs and arresting the Bretts.

Lawson said Bretts and his wife were each charged with criminal sale and possession of dangerous drugs.

DID YOU HEAR THE ONE ABOUT THE TRAVELING SALESMAN WHO GOT A FREE HIGHWAY EMERGENCY KIT WITH HIS NEW CAR LOAN?

"That's a very beautiful emergency kit," said the traveling salesman; "it certainly would be a handsome addition to the new car I'm planning to buy."

"Well," replied the Chase Manhattan loan officer, "anyone who takes out a new car loan from Chase between May 1st and June 30th gets one of these kits free."

The traveling salesman did not want to appear too anxious in front of the banker. "Is it practical?" he asked.

The banker smiled, opened the luggage-like carrying case and began describing the contents.

"An aerosol fire extinguisher, good for all types of small fires, even electrical, oil or grease."

"An aerosol tire inflator, with a latex sealer that inflates and seals flat tires in less than a minute."

"An emergency blinker with a large suction cup base that you can position on your car top or the roadside. It's visible for miles."

"A high-intensity spotlight with a 12-foot cord that plugs into your cigarette lighter."

"Eight-foot booster cables. Six-foot gas siphon pump. A first-aid kit complete with a 25-page first-aid book."

The salesman was amazed. "And you're giving this away? Free? Why it must be worth at least $19.95 retail!"

"Exactly," answered the banker. "You have a good eye for value. Were you ever a banker?"

"No," said the salesman, "I work for a living."

The banker did not laugh. Oh, he was friendly enough, but after all!

"There's only one problem," said the salesman. "I may not be able to pick out the car I want before June 30th."

So the banker told him that if he signed up now, Chase would reserve his car loan for 100 days at no charge.

Not only would he get his free highway emergency kit as soon as the loan was approved, but he'd have plenty of time to shop around for a good deal on a new car. So the salesman signed, and left the bank convinced that this was the best car loan deal he had ever experienced.

If you're a traveling salesman, doctor, painter or anybody looking for a practical, worthwhile free gift with your car loan, we hope this particular traveling salesman story will make you smile—all the way to our bank.

Retail Food Prices... 12 Per Cent Higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail food prices will average 12 and a half percent higher this year, even higher with the 50-day freeze and the promise of new Phase 4 commodity price controls by President Nixon, says the Agriculture Department. Further, the department reported Tuesday, farmers may not produce as much meat, milk and poultry as it predicted earlier this year. Production of such key crops as corn and soybeans also could be reduced by late plantings, it said.

In the absence of price ceilings, retail food prices, which probably have advanced further than the next few months, the department said. In the report officials said farmers are not increasing output of some items as much as believed earlier. Although indicating that record crop production is still possible, the report expressed some doubt as to whether as much livestock feed will be grown as indicated earlier.

Farmers have said they planned to plant 74 million acres of corn, up 12 per cent from 1972. On that basis, the department projected earlier a record corn crop of about 6.0 billion bushels. However, the lateness of the planting season raises questions about both acreage and yields, the new report said. Corn, along with soybeans, is the key to production of meat, milk and eggs. If those crops are short next fall, further rounds of high feed prices and cutbacks in food production are probable. The report, although indefinite about corn and other fall-harvested crops said a winter wheat crop is likely to be a record 1.3 billion bushels or 11 per cent above 1972, is being harvested now in the southern plains.

Price Squeeze Blamed for Gas Shortage

NEW YORK (UPI) — A fuel marketing expert claims that the gasoline shortage is primarily caused by a price squeeze and not by a deficiency in the amount of gasoline available. The claims, which back statements by independent dealer associations, were made here Tuesday.

Although there have been charges by public officials and some dealer groups that the major oil companies have created the shortage artificially in order to squeeze the independents out of business, the expert said the real cause of the price squeeze is the fact that foreign motorists are willing to pay much higher prices for gasoline than Americans. "Tankers can land enough gasoline physically in the United States right now to supply the whole demand," said Vincent Sgro, of Oil Buyers Guide of Lakewood, N.J. "But because the world price is higher than here, the independents have to pay higher prices for it than would force them to retail it at around 44 cents a gallon as compared with 34 1/2 cents charged for comparable fuel by stations of major domestic companies," he said. "Sgro said the domestic shortage is not acute enough to make American motorists willing to pay the higher price for the foreign gasoline the independent stations must get.

The independent dealer, thus, is faced with the alternative of operating at a big loss, closing down or operating on short hours and handling only such gasoline as he can get from the domestic major companies at regular prices. Sgro said one solution would appear to be to force the domestic majors to raise prices so the independents could compete, but that government doesn't see how it can ask the big oil companies to raise their prices when they are making big profits and the government is trying to end inflation.

Three Injured in Cycle Mishaps

TOWN OF ULSTER

Three persons were injured Tuesday night in two separate motorcycle mishaps involving motorcycles in the Town of Ulster and the Town of Esopus.

The Town of Ulster accident involved two motorcycles and occurred on private property owned by the Hudson Cement Company near Route 32, according to Hurler State Police who investigated both mishaps. Police said the two motorcycles were being driven through a field when one operated by John W. Fisher, 19, of 456 1st Avenue, Kingston, reportedly stopped, and the second, operated by John Berardi, 20, of 95 2nd Avenue, Kingston, was in collision with Hospital. Fisher did not Meanwhile, in the Town of Esopus, James Hargrove, 24, of 35 Esopus, sustained multiple lacerations of the legs in a one-vehicle mishap on Benedictine Hospital near Route 213, for his injuries. Details of the accident were unavailable.

Tentative Approval Given Saugerties Subdivision

The Saugerties Planning Board gave its tentative approval Tuesday night to a proposed plan that would subdivide an approximate 20-acre parcel into one-acre lots for later development along the West Saugerties Road.

Planning Board chairman S. Morrow Decker said, however, that the developer, Mt. View Lands Development Inc., must still resolve some minor details before official approval is given. Some 25 persons from the West Saugerties area attended Tuesday's public hearing; most of the questions of the board's committee to the planning board were at the close of the hearing. Tuesday's hearing, however, dealt with the development of the first segment of the subdivision plan, which does not lie adjacent to the tributary. The developer has not yet submitted formal plans for the development of the parcel's second segment, which lies near the creek. A public hearing will be required before approval can be given to the second segment of the development.

Decker noted that the developer intends to subdivide the approximate 75-acre parcel into single acre lots, and then sell the lots to individual home builders. The homes, it was reported, will be in the $35,000 range. Decker said it is expected that the Planning Board will give its approval to the first segment of the development once the developer satisfies some minor requirements, which include Ulster County Highway Department approval of drainage facilities along the West Saugerties Road. Once Planning Board approval is granted, said Decker, the matter will be referred to the Ulster County Health Department for further study into water and sewage capabilities, and the possible effect of the development on the reservoir water supply.

According to the Planning Board, the developer has satisfied all subdivision regulations required by the Town of Saugerties. The area was judged to be suitable for high density housing.

Kirkland Hotel Sold, No Changes in Operation

By DON TREAT

KINGSTON — Mr. and Mrs. Max Brugmann at a cocktail party in the Senate Room of the Kirkland Hotel following their first week of business. The famous Dutch Rathskeller restaurant was recently sold by the Brugmanns, also gave customers and friends a chance to bid farewell to the former owners and wish them well.

The business community was well represented at the party and was treated to a buffet prepared in the "Kirkland Tradition."

After operating a restaurant on Wall Street for 11 years, the Brugmanns purchased the Kirkland in 1949. The Dutch Rathskeller was built down stairs in 1963 after considerable research and planning to make it a special place.

"We visited many restaurants in Holland before adding the Rathskeller to insure its authenticity," said a proud Max Brugmann. "It has become a landmark across the country."

The decision to sell the Kirkland came fairly recently, within the past year or six months, according to the Brugmanns. They have retired to their home in West Hurley, where they also own real estate.

Originally from Greece, Paul Kahermanes has been in the United States for approximately 15 years. His wife, Norma, is a native of Ireland.

The new owners have no immediate plans for any changes in the operation of the Kirkland.

"We are just going to feel our way along for awhile until we think about doing anything new," explained Kahermanes. "Right now we just want to continue serving the fine food and giving the good service that the restaurant is known for."

New Hertz Offerings

NEW YORK Hertz Rent A Car has announced two important plans for its customers.

First was the announcement that Hertz is opening membership in its No. 1 club to any car renter qualified to join.

The other announcement concerns a special long-weekend rate for travelers, good from noon Thursday to noon Monday. The membership plan, originally targeted to frequent renters who would gain the most benefit from the service, the convenient, "no wait" service is now open to all qualified renters.

The No. 1 club service eliminates the need for renters to repeat routine rental information each time they rent a car.

Any car renter who presents a valid Hertz, Avis or National Car Rental charge card at the time of rental can, if he wishes, be automatically enrolled in the Hertz No. 1 club. A membership card is available in about four weeks.

The long-weekend rates, $59 plus tax for a standard or intermediate Ford or similar sedan, provides 500 free miles with additional mileage charged at 12 cents per mile. The motorist pays for the gas he uses.

The rates are available at most but not all Hertz locations. Check with your travel agent or Hertz office.

Dairy Council Elects

POUGHKEEPSIE Edwin Fitchett of Poughkeepsie was elected president of the Dairy Council of the Mid-Hudson Area at the Annual meeting June 4, Chef's Inn, Poughkeepsie.

Other officers of the Board of Directors are Merton De Puy, New Paltz, vice-president; Robert Kelder, Stone Ridge, secretary; and Robert Bowman, Red Hook, treasurer.

About 80 dietitians, school nurse-teachers, pre-kindergarten teachers and Dairy Council members heard Dr. Myron Winick, Professor of Pediatrics and Director of the Institute of Human Nutrition, Columbia University, College of Physicians and Surgeons, report on his research on the effect of nutrition on the cellular development of the brain. Dr. Winick said that by one year or 18 months an infant has developed all of his brain cells and if there is both pre-natal and post natal malnutrition the number of brain cells can be reduced by as much as 60 per cent, resulting in retardation.

Dr. Winick said that if malnutrition occurs after cell division is completed, the effect of the malnutrition can be reversed through adequate diet and recovery is possible.

Singer, Denman Have Septic Tank Booklet

BOICEVILLE — A new, free eight-page illustrated booklet entitled "The Story of Willie Bacteria, or How To Take Care of Your Septic Tank or Cesspool" is now available to owners of septic tanks and cesspools from Singer and Denman Lumber Co. Route 28, Boiceville. In a light vein, illustrated by cartoons, the booklet explains the workings of the septic tank and cesspool in simplified fashion. It describes the bacterial action of the disposal system and what is necessary for its proper functioning. Chief attraction in the booklet is a humanized "Willie Bacteria" who is responsible for maintaining the efficiency of the disposal system. When the septic tank or cesspool user ignores the fact that "Willie" is working to keep the disposal system free from disease, and saturates him with an overdose of detergents, acids and lyes, caustics and other irritants, "Willie" is very unhappy, and more often than not, just stops working.

But there is a bright side to the story too, for "Willie Bacteria" has found a way to educate the septic tank or cesspool user, so that "Willie" can do his job under modern up-to-date working conditions, and prevent the fuss, mess, inconvenience, and expense of a clogged disposal system.

The booklet was produced by The FX-Lab Company, Inc., 77 Okner Parkway, Livingston, N.J., 07039.

Rhinebeck HS Rites

RHINEBECK in the high school building next year, with as many as 100 more students to use the building than did this year.

When about 80 Rhinebeck High School seniors receive their diplomas June 25, one tradition will remain that many students wanted to do away with.

Earlier this term a group of seniors was given the assignment by high school principal Erwin Kane to put together its concept of what the commencement exercises should be.

One suggestion by that committee was to eliminate the verbal acknowledgement of a Regents diploma in the presentation, as they felt this tends to cast a pall over those not receiving the special sheepskin awarded for successfully passing all Regents courses.

At Monday's board of education meeting, a resolution to adopt this attitude was voted down by board members after much discussion. They felt tradition must be served and that parents would object.

Students at the meeting also asked that a proposal to place musical and other extracurricular activities after school instead of during the day not be granted.

They claimed that this would effectively cut down on participation in the music program especially, as many youngsters would have no means of transportation.

The proposal was brought up as a means of combatting the severe overcrowding expected old Rhinecliff schoolhouse from the Rhinecliff Fire Company for $1. No specific use has yet been set for the frame structure.

And students will be apprised of the provisions of the new stricter illegal narcotics legislation in the state when they return to classes in September, upon the suggestion of board member James Cecil.

He said that a representative of the District Attorney's Office had noted that harsher penalties for use and sale of "hard" drugs should be made known to students.

The June 25 regular meeting of the board has been cancelled.

SU's Pesavento Goes to Wallkill

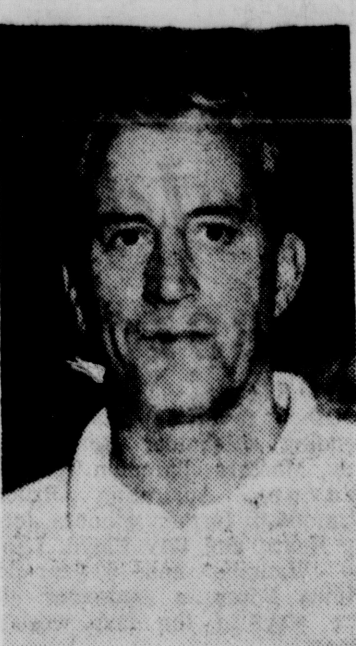

WALLKILL

Si Pesavento is returning to the arena of his greatest coaching success: the high school ranks.

The veteran basketball mentor from New Paltz State is taking over the position of Athletic Director at Wallkill High School from the retiring Vinnie DeAngelis and in addition will become round ball coach at the Ulster County Athletic League school allowing present coach Bill Pitcher to confine himself strictly to his duties as mathematics teacher.

Pesavento's decision, announced Tuesday, ends a multi-faceted 11-year career at New Paltz State, the last three as varsity basketball coach of a team that has become synonymous with losing in recent seasons. Prior to that, Pesavento was freshman coach for a year and a college administrator in the housing and admissions departments for seven years.

In between his move from administrator to coach, Pesavento was golf coach at New Paltz High School. His greatest success, however, came at Livingston Manor High where his teams won 60 straight games from 1960 to 1963. Earlier, a one-year assignment at Chester High produced that school's first Orange County League hoop title.

A graduate of Ithaca College, the 51-year-old Pesavento had come under fire from many outspoken student critics during the past season for his handling of the New Paltz State basketball team. The squad, plagued, as are other State teams, by financial woes, won seven of 27 games.

Ironically, Pesavento took over the coaching job from longtime friend Doug Sheppard after he had resigned in the wake of similar student criticism Sheppard has since contended that he was going to quit anyway.

The irony stretches when it is noted that many who were unhappy with Pesavento were calling for the return of Sheppard to the job he vacated. No successor was immediately named to replace Pesavento at New Paltz. Conjecture is that a new man won't be picked until a new Chairman of the Department of Physical Education is found to replace Dr. Richard Clegg, another on the SUNY staff who has chosen to leave.

Mrs. Hallenbeck Ties In Northeast Event

KINGSTON Mrs. Earl Davies of Wallkill Country Club, who had never won a tournament, and Mrs. Gert Hallenbeck of Catskill Country Club, who has forgotten the number of titles she owns, carded 86s Tuesday to pace the Class A action in the Northeast Women's Golf Association tournament at Wiltwyck Golf Club.

Mrs. Davis fashioned nines of 49-37 with a birdie on No. 10, while Mrs. Hallenbeck, the Golfing Grandmother of the Northeastern, was out in 45 and in with 41.

Mrs. Sally Murray of Mohawk fired a 90-19-71 to lead Class A action in the Northeast Women's Golf Association tournament at Wiltwyck Golf Club.

Marilyn Motzkin led the Wiltwyck class A contingent with 45-44-89. Nancy Lowe and Carol Levine each had 95s.

American Five Routs Chinese

PEKING, China (AP) — North Carolina's George Karl sparked the U.S. team to an 88-59 victory over a Chinese basketball squad Tuesday night in the first of eight exhibition games scheduled over a three-week period.

In a preliminary game played before a crowd of more than 18,000, the U.S. girls' team from John F. Kennedy College was defeated by a Chinese women's team 79-63.

The games received added significance with a rare and surprise visit by Chiang Ching-wei of Chairman Mao, and four other members of the Chinese Politburo and Central Committee.

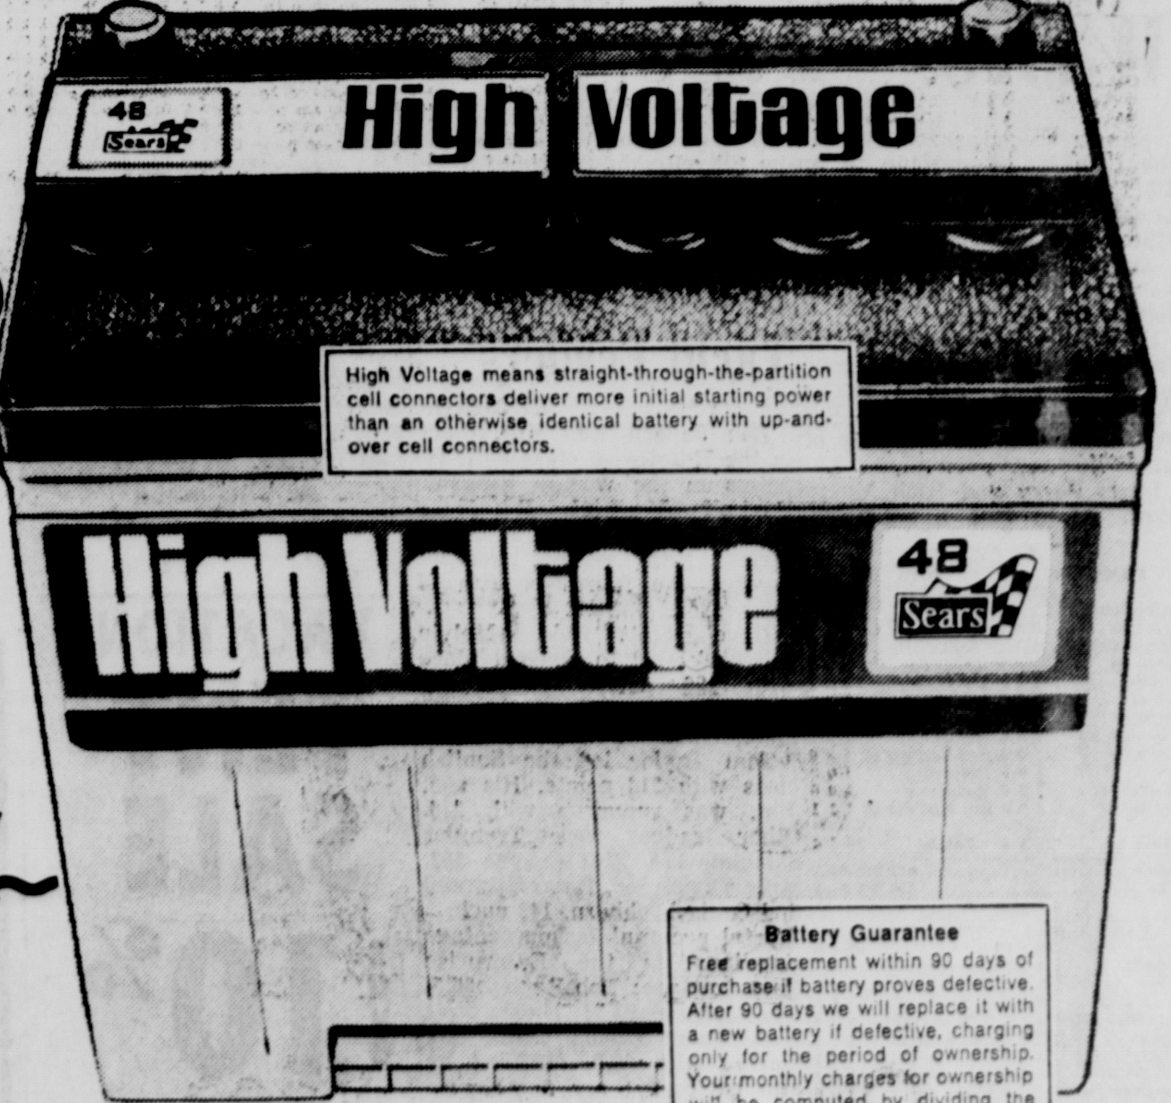

Prior to the game, Madame Ching led the presidium and greeted the American players and members of the basketball delegations during an impressive ceremony. The Americans will play games in Hang Chou, Shanghai and Canton before departing China July 7.

Senior Citizens Seminar at UCCC

Gilman: 'Remove Earning Limits'

STONE RIDGE Speaking before more than 200 older Americans at Ulster County Community College, Saturday, Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.) called for legislation removing the earning limits of those over the age of 65, providing for catastrophic illness insurance and for property tax reforms for the elderly.

Gilman said, "I can't see any reason why, after a certain age, individuals are forced to limit their incomes and have to get along on the meager benefits of Social Security. I believe these archaic income restrictions should be abolished."

Participating in the annual Senior Citizens' Seminar, sponsored by the Ulster County

Senior Citizens' Advisory Council, Gilman outlined programs established in recent sessions and explained provisions of the Older Americans' Act established recently by the 93rd Congress.

"However," Gilman said, "despite all this which has been done, so much more remains to be accomplished."

Gilman concluded by reviewing pending legislation at the federal level designed to benefit older Americans and stated, "I have introduced a resolution granting additional benefits under our Social Security system and am currently working on legislation for reforming property taxes. The pinnacle upon which our nation stands today is upon your shoulders... we owe more than we can express for the productive efforts each of you have made in the past."

Gilman also recently called for an investigation into the possibility of establishing a regional National Cemetery for veterans in the 26th Congressional District.

Gilman said, "Now that Congress has passed the National Cemeteries Act, I believe it would be wise for our veterans' organizations to explore the possibilities of finding surplus state or federal lands in this area which could be established as a National Cemetery in order to serve the needs of the growing number of veterans and their families in our region."

The veterans meeting had been called to study the feasibility of creating a Veterans' Cemetery for Orange County.

Women in Politics ... Study by LWV

KINGSTON Why are so few women elected to public office in Kingston and Ulster County?

The Kingston League of Women Voters has been studying the role of women in government and politics in the greater Kingston area for some time and Monday night held discussion of some aspects of the question and conclusions that have been arrived at as the result of interviews with women in both major political parties.

The league questioned women concerning why they remain in supportive rather than leading political roles.

They found that women generally do not aspire to leadership roles and enter political life assuming that they will be stuffing envelopes and making coffee and not doing much else.

Women questioned reported that they did not feel discriminated against in the political arena but that there are special problems.

One of considerable concern is money. It takes money to be politically active and many as wives, do not feel they have as much control over family funds as does the husband. The league found exceptions however, in women who have returned to work after their children are grown and who find a new freedom in being able to spend the money they make.

The role of the husband in his wife's political life was found to be equally important. Most women in politics have politically active husbands, the league learned and most felt that without the help of their husbands they would experience double the difficulty accomplishing anything in the political arena.

The League hopes and intends to take a more active role in encouraging women to enter politics and feels that it perhaps can be done best at the committee person level, according to Mrs. Rita Jackaway, league spokeswoman.

It is easier for women to operate on a local level, they found because working at the state and national level requires mobility which most women find difficult to combine with family life.

Paltz Student To Brazil

NEW PALTZ Ellen Garvey, a senior at New Paltz High School, will be spending this summer in Yapo Paulo, Brazil, under the sponsorship of the American Field Service (AFS).

The daughter of Mr. Michael J. Garvey, Holland Lane, New Paltz, the 17-year-old student has been picked by the AFS to participate in its two-month summer exchange program. Local AFS officials were notified of her selection last week.

AFS, an international scholarship program of high school juniors and seniors, seeks to increase world understanding.

Karin Lissper, a Swedish AFS exchange student who has been living with the J. Donald Kents, will be returning to her home at the end of this month.

Community Drug Education Program

Renaissance... Project for People

KINGSTON — "We are a people program," said Jeff Choflet describing the Renaissance Project which he directs at 611 Broadway. Choflet feels that Renaissance, a drug education program, has done a great deal since coming to Kingston 15 months ago but that it has the potential to do much more. The major problem blocking more rapid progress seems to be a lack of public understanding and an unwillingness to find out what Renaissance is. "We want the community to know we are here and the reasons for us being here," explained Choflet. Renaissance has services for just about anybody in Kingston. We don't restrict our work to hard core addicts or even just drug users. Drug education is one of the main goals of Renaissance and Choflet, along with his staff coordinators, Jeff Gordon and Audrey D'Amato, feel that the public is in desperate need of it. Too many parents are either unaware of what is going on or are turning their backs to the problems created by drugs, according to the Renaissance staff. The three of them would like to see many new faces coming through the door to see what Renaissance is and help spread the word about what a positive force it is in the community. In addition to helping anyone who might wander into the center, the staff also goes out into the community to work with schools, businesses, jails, and service organizations. "We've been to most of the high schools and junior highs in the area for speaking engagements but we would like to do much more of it," Choflet said. "It's really impossible to explain much of anything in the 45 minutes or an hour we are usually given." A strong program in Kingston High School is one of their primary aims.

Renaissance goes to the Ulster County Jail twice a week to work with any inmates who would like help. Five inmates are currently being serviced. The purpose in working with those behind bars is to help prepare them for a successful re-entry into the community. If the persons working with the inmate feel that he is not ready to go out into the community, an attempt will be made to find a safe place for him, possible in Renaissance's living facility in Ellenville. In service training for businesses, who are increasingly experiencing employee drug problems, is offered by Renaissance and it is always willing to work with organizations such as Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis, etc., on drug education programs. Renaissance provides encounter groups and parent conferences, as well as almost any service that would benefit the community. It also responds to emergency calls when special help is needed. There is no particular formula that works in solving drug problems, according to Choflet, so it is not unusual that Renaissance would refer someone to another source for help. "Our aim is to help people, not hang onto someone just because he came to us," stressed Choflet. The Kingston project is funded by the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council. It is one of several Renaissance centers and can send those who desire the complete rehabilitation program to one of the living facilities, such as the one in Ellenville. Ellenville is fully staffed by trained professionals in many fields, including medicine, psychiatry and drug counseling. The program there is rigid but the cure rate for those who graduate is close to 90 per cent.

One of the requirements Renaissance has is that anyone who desires help must undergo a preliminary psychiatric examination. This is for the safety of the individual and also helps to get a better idea of that person's particular needs. The Kingston project is in daily contact with the Ellenville center and considers the telephone one of its most important tools. "It might take us as many as five calls to find someone who can help us to help someone here but its well worth the cost if that person benefits," maintained Miss D'Amato. "You can't put a price on helping someone," added Choflet. The Renaissance center on Broadway is open six days a week: Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 10-5 and Saturday 11-4. There is a "Hotline" when the center is closed at 647-6575.

Cardinal Cooke to Attend Ceremonies

WEST PARK — Terence Cardinal Cooke will preside at ceremonies dedicating two cottages here Sunday at the St. Cabrini Home. The ceremonies will commence at 11:30 a. m. and include a Mass, luncheon and dedication service. Msgr. Robert Arpie, director of child care for Catholic charities, Father William Jenks, C.S.S.R., chaplain of the St. Cabrini Home and Father John Budwick will concelebrate the Mass. The dedication will be attended by members of the board of Cabrini Home, staff, children in residence and their parents. The dedication has been set to coincide with visiting Sunday so that parents will be able to attend. Saint Cabrini Home, one of 22 child care agencies affiliated with New York Catholic Charities in the Department of Child Care, has a multi-service program for children 5-18, including group homes, agency operated boarding homes and foster homes, as well as the on-campus residential units. Some of the children attend an on-campus school, others attend public and parochial schools in the community. Founded in West Park in 1890 by Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini, the Saint Cabrini Home, Inc. is sponsored by the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart. The present administrator is Miss Rosemary Sheridan. Students from Marist, New Paltz and Vassar participate in student placement programs at the Cabrini Home, assisting the agency in the areas of tutoring, recreation and child care while earning college credit and preparing for future work in the fields of education and social services.

Recent Ceremony

Childhood Sweethearts Meet Again and Wed

In their youth Mabelle C. Mix and Boyce E. Carter lived on adjacent farms in Pennsylvania. They were childhood sweethearts and vividly remember many happy times including occasions when they used to ride Hal, a thoroughbred horse owned by Carter's grandfather.

Their paths separated after high school days. Mabelle continued her education in Chicago and Carter went to Florida to seek employment. Each married and raised a family. Ten years ago Mrs. Mix became a widow and last year Carter became a widower. After meeting again, the couple decided to exchange marriage vows and the ceremony took place recently in the United Methodist Church in Skippers Eddy, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Carter is well known in the Kingston area having been on the teaching staff of the school district for the past 13 years. Her husband is the owner of the Carter Paradise Trailer Park and is associated with the Perry Mobile Home Company in Inverness, Fla. They will be residing in their winter home on South Wall Street, Kingston.

Dr. Dave Peterson of Fargo, N.D. gave his mother-in-law in marriage while her daughter, Mrs. Dave Peterson, served as matron of honor. Two other sons and their families sent congratulatory messages since they were unable to attend. The teacher's former student, Deborah Longhi of Kingston, served as an attendant.

MR. & MRS. BOYCE E. CARTER

Dennis Carter of Florida was best man for his father and his wife served as an attendant. Mr. Carter's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jayne, also attended and assisted at the reception. Two Carter sons, Harry and Mark of Skippers Eddy, Pa., served as ushers. Traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. Bonnie Jayne, organist, and Ronald Mowry was the soloist. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Mr. Bauer, rector of the church.

The wedding party chose traditional attire for the ceremony with Mrs. Carter in white satin brocade and chapel length veil. She carried red roses. The bridal attendants wore floral gowns in lavender, pink and lime green. Complimenting each gown was a matching shoulder length veil. The Carters will be traveling during the summer season.

Kintner-Schwabel Nuptials Announced

Union University Church in Alfred was the setting for the wedding of Kendra Rae Kintner of West Hurley and Mark George Schwabel of Kenmore on Saturday, June 16. The Rev. Lawrence Littlehale officiated at the double ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Leon Neu of St. Jude's Church, Alfred. Curtis A. Davies provided traditional wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean M. Kintner of Tanglewood Road, West Hurley. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Schwabel of Kenmore.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She selected a gown of crystaletta organza over bridal satin, styled with an empire waistline and full skirt. The bodice of re-embroidered Chantilly lace featured a sculptured neckline and Bishop sleeves with cuffs of matching lace. A Juliet cap of matching Chantilly lace held her elbow-length silk illusion veil and she carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of orchids, stephanotis and dried star flowers.

Mrs. C. Thomas Guadagnola of Stony Run Apartments, Kingston, was matron of honor for her sister in a gown of pink floral organza over pink and white checked gingham. The gown featured an empire waistline, puffed sleeves and a stand-up collar. She wore a pink picture hat and carried a nosegay of miniature carnations, pompons and star flowers.

Miss Martha Hoover of Manuta, Ohio, was bridesmaid. Her gown and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

Jonathan R. Bolton of Quakertown, Pa., was best man. Ushering were Robert and Gerald Schwabel, brothers of the bridegroom, Kenmore.

A reception was given in the Victorian Room of The Big Elms Restaurant in Hornell.

The bride, a 1969 graduate of Ontario Central School, received her BA degree from Alfred University where she was a History major and a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, Pi Gamma Mu, and Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society.

The bridegroom, a 1969 alumnus of Kenmore High School, was graduated in 1973 from Alfred University where he was awarded his BS degree in Ceramic Engineering. He is a member of Keramos and the national honor society, Phi Kappa Phi.

After a wedding trip through the New England states, Mr. and Mrs. Schwabel will reside in Belmont. They will both enter graduate school at Alfred University this fall.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
© 1973, Emily Post Institute, Inc.
ON GOING DUTCH

One of the more radical changes in social customs since Emily Post's Etiquette was originally written is that of "Going Dutch." It is, of course, nothing new between members of the same sex, or couples spending an evening together, but it is surely a new concept of boy-girl dating. From time immemorial, the male always paid all the expenses, and that was quite right because he was, years ago, the only breadwinner. Now that girls are not only earning as much or more than their dates, but are also demanding the same treatment and attitude as men, they must be prepared to assume the responsibilities, too. Some men like it, others don't. The important thing is that you and the men you go out with discuss it, and come to a mutual agreement on financing your dates. Today's quiz will help you to know what to do about "Going Dutch," and how to do it.

1. Should a girl expect to go Dutch on a first date?

A. No. This may change, too, but as of now, when a man asks a girl to go out for the first time, he expects to foot the bill and she should allow him that age-old prerogative.

2. After you've been out with a man a few times, and feel that you should share expenses, how do you go about it?

A. Don't wait until the check arrives and then offer to pay half. Do, when he asks you for the date, tell him you'd like to go out again but you would like to pay your own way. If he blows up, drop it, but if he's receptive to the idea, discuss whether you'd like to go half-in-half each time, or if it would be better for one of you to pay the check on alternate evenings.

3. If you have agreed to go Dutch with a steady date, do you stick to it when you are out with other people?

A. Discuss this ahead of time, too. A lot of men would feel very differently about having a girl pay their check in front of friends or co-workers.

4. When a group is going out together, do the boys split up the check or do the girls chip in?

A. The girls should offer and leave it up to the boys to refuse or accept. The girls should not make an issue of it. At a bar or beer hall, each member of the group including girls, may pay in turn for a round of drinks or a pitcher of beer.

5. When you are traveling with a group, does each member pay his or her own checks?

A. This could get very complicated. The best solution is to have everyone contribute the same amount to a kitty, which is used to pay all expenses. And leftover cash is divided equally and returned.

Bennett P-TA Elections

The Reginald R. Bennett School Parent-Teachers Association held its annual election and installation of officers recently in conjunction with the school's Spring Concert.

Elected were Mrs. Henry Mosser, Shokan, president; Mrs. Bert Leifeld, West Shokan, first vice president; Mrs. William Roosa, Shokan, second vice president; Mrs. Albert Studt, Boiceville, recording secretary; Mrs. Myles Charlesworth, Boiceville, corresponding secretary; Robert Grange, Shokan, treasurer.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Dr. Frank Marlowe, superintendent of Ontario School District. Mrs. Lloyd Humphrey, outgoing first vice president, presented Mrs. Robert Motrie, outgoing president, with a gift on behalf of the PTA for her two years of service to the school. The ceremony was largely attended.

The PTA has had an active year and just recently gifted the teachers and administrators with a Teachers Appreciation Day luncheon. As her final official act as president, Mrs. Motrie will present the annual PTA Secor Memorial Award at the school's sixth graduation tonight.

New Rose Society Organizing Tonight

MRS. DOROTHY YOERG, judge of Ulster Park, an accredited judge of the American Rose Society, has been spearheading the organization of a Rose Society in Ulster

County. A first meeting of the new proposed Hudson Valley Chapter of the National Rose Society was held recently at her home. Mrs. Yoerg is looking forward to the second organizational meeting slated for tonight at 8 o'clock in the Heritage Savings Bank on Wall Street. Here, Mrs. Yoerg is pictured with one of the roses which measured almost six inches in diameter. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Both Mr. and Mrs. Coleman are Consulting Rosarians of the American Rose Society and is president of the Westchester Rose Society. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman will answer questions during an open discussion period after their talk.

The possibility of a Rose Society in this area is the result of a preliminary meeting at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Yoerg, Rose Hill Gardens, Ulster Park. At that time Floyd F. Taylor, New York State District Director of the American Rose Society, discussed the project with those present. The vote was overwhelmingly in favor of a Rose Society. A date for the organization was chosen and a committee met to plan for the event. Serving on this committee are: Mrs. Frank Greco, Saugerties; Mrs. Arthur Finger, Saugerties; Robert Keagle, Accord; Martin Kelly, High Falls; Dwight Mackay, Newburgh and Mrs. Dorothy Yoerg, Ulster Park.

There will be no charge for admission to this open meeting. Refreshments will be served and an award given.

THE ROSE GARDEN at the home of Mrs. Yoerg was planted in the shape of a wagon wheel with each bed of roses forming a spoke. The former teacher of journalism and wartime reporter is also a member of the African Violet Society. She is reported to have more than 300 plants in the basement which bloom all winter. In her garden she has about 250 rose bushes. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Security Guard Safer Than Gun

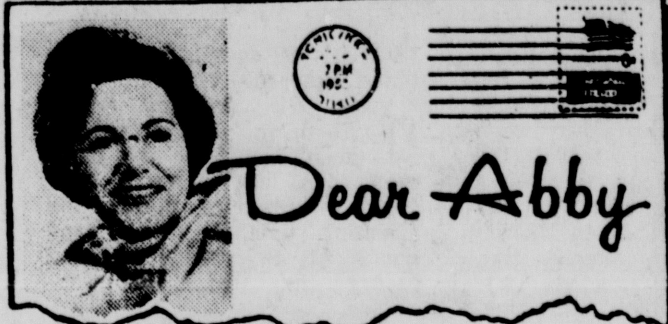

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a small grocery store in a very rough neighborhood. We have been here for many years and make a good living. Two years ago we were held up twice in 6 months. The robbers tied us up and cleaned out the register, but no real harm came to us. After that, my husband hired a security guard. Since then nobody has bothered us.

A few months ago someone told my husband he was foolish to pay a security guard—he should let the security guard go and keep a loaded gun under the counter. Abby, my husband has never fired a gun in his life—but he took his friend's advice.

I told my husband I wouldn't go in the store as long as he kept the gun there. He said I could stay home—he didn't need me. After working side by side with him for 35 years, I am hurt and heart sick. I am so afraid that if a robber comes in my husband will get excited and reach for the gun and the robber will kill him. That's the way it always happens.

Am I wrong to believe we are in more danger keeping the gun in the store? Or am I right?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You are right. Statistics show that guns kill more innocent people than robbers. And law enforcement experts would strongly advise against keeping a loaded gun handy. The security guard is a far better idea.

DEAR ABBY: Do you see anything wrong with entertaining a boy friend in your bedroom? I am 15 and Mike is 17, and I entertain him in my bedroom because that's where the stereo is and all we do is listen to records and talk. Besides, I have two little brats for brothers and if Mike and I didn't lock ourselves in the bedroom those kids would be running in and out and bothering us.

When my mother found my bedroom door locked with Mike inside, she had a cow. We weren't doing anything wrong, I don't know why she doesn't trust me. I've never gotten into any trouble with dudes.

What's wrong with listening to records in my bedroom? Please make your answer short because I don't like long boring answers.

OKAY GIRL

DEAR OKAY: A bedroom is not an appropriate place to entertain your boy friend.

Move your stereo to another room, don't lock any doors, and ask your mother to please discipline the kids.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman but I am so ashamed I just can't tell the truth about something, and that is my problem. The daughter of a friend was recently married and I sent her a luncheon cloth and matching napkins for a wedding gift. She called me and told me the color doesn't go with her decorating scheme and she'd like to return it for another color.

Abby, I bought it on sale and was told it was not returnable. So what should I tell her?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Tell her the gift is not returnable. What else? And don't be ashamed. There is nothing shameful about taking advantage of a sale.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DUMB CITY KID—AGE 44": A mule is the offspring of a male ass and a female horse. A mule is almost always sterile.

A "hinny" is the offspring of a she-ass and a stallion. A hinny is also usually sterile. An ass is a donkey. A jackass is specifically a male donkey. (Class adjourned.)

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Stone Ridge Library Fair Will Open Saturday; Top Events

"Under the Big Top" will be the theme of the 38th annual Stone Ridge Library Fair to be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mrs. William Paetow, fair chairman, announces many innovations which will accent the circus theme of the fair and captivate the interest of children while their parents browse among the numerous antique booths and craftsmen's tables, an area arranged by Mrs. Horace Sarr, antiques chairman.

An entire section of the library grounds will be devoted to Children's Events and will include at noon a mystifying demonstration of magic by Walter Gibson, will know prestidigitator and author of The Shadow, other works on magic and mysticism, and a selection of animated cartoons to be shown at 2 p.m. by Romeo Muller from his extensive collection of films. There will also be pony rides, balloons, games, pogo stick fun, a "Tattoo Parlour" and a fortune teller, all under the aegis of Mrs. Frank Lynch and her troupe of happy clowns and supervising 4-H members.

New this year will be a clam booth featuring not only clams on the half shell, but also sausage and pepper sandwiches, prepared by Mrs. William Donahue. The traditional grilled hamburgers and hot dogs, coffee, lemonade and soda will be available, as in the past. Taking full responsibility for the customary excellence of these lunch-time favorites are Mrs. S. Robert Kelder Sr., Mrs. Richard Davenport and Douglas Hunt, chairmen. Also, for the eternally hungry, there will be Italian Ices and fresh baked pretzels, served by Mrs. Peter Knudsen.

The "Taster's Choice" both, providing samples of various gourmet foods for a nominal fee and a copy of the gourmet recipe for an additional fee, will return for its second year, due to the efforts of Mrs. George B. Erbsstein, who will distribute tastes of prized and secret recipes from the personal cooking files of many local super-chefs and bakers. At the same time, Mrs. Martin Tully and Mrs. Ralph Buswell, chairmen of the Frozen Casserole and Baked Goods booths, respectively, will urge fair-goers to remain a bit longer to enjoy the fair fun and still manage to produce an efficient, delicious home-cooked meal by purchasing a take-home casserole and dessert.

Bargain hunters will be pleased with the quantity and variety of toys, books, garden plants, rummage and miscellaneous items. Someone may even discover an unexpected antique at bargain prices! Gayle Jamison, Mrs. William Daron, Mrs. Richard Pagel, Connie Ambrose and Mrs. Raymond Van Kleeck, chairmen, will be present to advise and help those interested.

An additional plus this year, will be offered by the Marletown Artists' Association, which will display the handiwork of its many talented members. There will be something here to please the eye of everyone, from hooked rugs, sculpture, painting and ceramics to luxuriously appliqued quilts, reports Mrs. Sam Goodman, art chairman. A rug hooking demonstration will also be featured by Mrs. Orville Hansen, member.

In a similar vein, lovely, handmade items of clothing and decorative objects will be sold by Mrs. Louis Crepet at the Handiwork booth. This category will also display for sale a variety of four attractive, sepia-tone postcard sketches by a former resident-artist of local historical landmarks, certain to be prized by the memorabilia collector.

Strolling musicians, Bill Paetow and Pete Knudsen, will entertain throughout the day. Entertainment will also be provided by fashion models directed by Mrs. Sidney Reiss and a commentator Chet London, who will favor the audience with an off-beat fashion show illustrating a nightmare or wild dream envisioned recently by Mr. London. A number of selected garments will be auctioned off at this time.

All funds realized during the day-long event will be utilized for procuring new books and will make other civic projects of the Stone Ridge Library possible. Mrs. Paetow and Mrs. Edward Nadel, fair co-chairman, extend appreciation to Harold Holly and his crew of set-up people who will provide the muscle, making the fair possible, and to the many workers from the town of Marletown, Kingston and surrounding area. Workers are all waiting to please you at the library grounds on Route 209 in the heart of Stone Ridge.

Short Honeymoon for John Dean's New Wife

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The honeymoon was short for Maureen Kane Dean. The past few months of Watergate crises following her October marriage to John W. Dean III have been horrendous, she says.

"But maybe we'll be able to relax a bit when this—what shall I call it?—is over," Mrs. Dean said in a doorstep interview at her home.

"This" is the scandal over the Watergate conspiracy and coverup in which her husband is alleged to have played a major role.

Mrs. Dean said she will accompany the ousted White House counsel when he tells his version of the conspiracy to the Senate Watergate committee next Monday.

"You can bet I'll be there," said the handsome blonde, who is Dean's second wife. He is divorced from his first wife.

President Nixon fired Dean April 30. Leaked accounts of the 34-year-old lawyer's story, told so far behind closed doors, indicate that he is likely to implicate Nixon in the Watergate coverup.

Since those chilly spring days when Mrs. Dean watched her husband fall from White House glory, her life has changed markedly and "it's become terribly busy," she said.

In a way, she has been prisoner in her own home. Network television crews have camped on her townhouse doorstep in Alexandria, Va., sometimes round-the-clock, knocking on the front door until midnight and catching her again when she appeared to collect the morning newspaper.

Shortly after her husband lost his job, she escaped to Florida for a few days respite. But, since then, there have been few outings for tennis, swimming, visiting with friends, even shopping, she said. "But maybe when it's all over" The sentence lingered.

From the doorstep where Mrs. Dean spoke, her husband was seen seated in the basement den, bent over a desk filled with papers, putting the finishing touches on a long document he intends to read before the Watergate committee.

Asked if she helped him prepare the statement, Mrs. Dean said, "I've helped him type it, but the ideas are his, of course, from his head."

Mrs. Dean, who appears to be slightly younger than her husband, was calm and soft-spoken on what was to have been the eve of Dean's televised Senate Watergate committee debut. The hearings later were postponed for a week because of the state visit of Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Queen Elizabeth Rotting Away and Nobody Cares

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Queen Elizabeth is rotting away. And nobody seems to know what to do with it.

Gone the famed old Cunard liner's regality, gone her glamor. The one-time largest passenger ship in the world and pride of the British merchant fleet is a hulk in Hong Kong harbor where unidentified suspected saboteurs set her afire one Sunday in January last year.

The rusted wreck, keeled over to starboard in 43 feet of water but visible from stem to stern, has become a tourist attraction on harbor sightseeing tours.

"So sad," comes the general comment from Americans and Britons who remember with nostalgia her halcyon days when she was queen of the transatlantic run. "It's a pity to see a ship like that. It's heartbreaking. She was a beautiful ship."

Green and red buoys mark out her graveyard in the harbor's western approaches, a dead ship bypassed each day by the world's freighters, liners and the fishing junks of the South China Sea. Only the tips of her two giant funnels still bear dabs of white paint and a patch of blue marks the remains of the swimming pool on the mangled, tilted deck. A catwalk straddles her almost horizontal port side, painted with numbers where her fuel tanks had to be emptied to avoid pollution.

Just discernible at her bow is the faded name "Seawise University" under which she was to sail for wealthy Chinese ship owner C.Y. Tung. He was having her converted into a floating college when she caught fire. Now he has the problem of what to do with the wreck, which the harbor authorities want removed.

"We don't know whether it will be refloated or scrapped or what," said a spokesman for his company, the Island Navigation Corp. "The experts are still looking into it. They have many proposals. It is not an easy job at all. For example, how to cut it up. The hull is 15 feet into the mud right now. We expect their final meeting soon and they will bring their proposals to the owner and discuss them with the (insurance) underwriters."

The 83,673-ton Elizabeth has followed a downward voyage since her caviar and champagne crossings of the Atlantic and, before that, her service as a troop carrier always evading U-Boats and German bombers after her dramatic unarmed maiden voyage to New York in 1939.

Some Feelings of Relief, but, Uneasy Peace While Leaders Talk

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The leaders of history's mightiest military powers are talking together, and while this fact arouses widespread feelings of relief, it also generates some uneasiness.

There are several reasons. First, Moscow seems to be singing two distinct tunes, one keyed to Soviet economic needs, the other to world political ambitions. Again, since there are only two superpowers, other nations worry about just how peaceful will be the peace that radiates from the Washington summit.

"They married me while I was away," goes a Russian adage, and Europe may now wonder how much of its future is being decided without its presence as President Nixon has his second summit with the Soviet chief, Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Henry A. Kissinger, who designed the policy that produced the summit, some time ago expressed belief that much of the chance for stable peace depended on confidence around the world in the United States. Europeans now see a United States preoccupied with its own problems such as the current political upheaval, inflation and the plight of the dollars.

If it all seems to spell waning confidence in the United States abroad, it can also add up to something of a crisis for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as the alliance nears its 25th birthday.

By the same token, East European Communist regimes — to say nothing of China — watch a Soviet regime seemingly intent on long-term business links with the United States as if to guarantee a long period of "peaceful coexistence" that will permit pursuit of purely national Soviet interests.

In fact, nations on all sides seem worried that the superpowers will reach decisions that, willy nilly, will shape much of the world's future.

Leaders in the West worry that the public is beginning to regard the cold war as ancient history. Creation of just such an impression has been a Soviet goal for some time. Ironically, the Western leaders had less to fret over when Moscow under Stalin and Khrushchev seemed more menacing. Stalin's threats and Khrushchev's bluster, both before and after his U.S. visit, provided cement to keep NATO together.

Whatever the assurances to the contrary, many a European leader worries that West Europe will be neutralized, made subject to the will and influence of its huge neighbor.

On the other hand, voices on the Communist side suggest concern that détente will defer and perhaps diminish the goals of international communism.

Brezhnev seems genuinely anxious for enough tranquility to allow what he calls "Communist building," meaning attention to the long-neglected consumer sector. Yet others near the top in Moscow think the consumers should go on waiting while heavy industry and the military continue enjoying lopsided priority.

Inflation Problems In Western Europe

LONDON (AP) — It may be small comfort to Americans, but their inflation problems could be worse. They are in much of Western Europe.

Wage and price controls are not working well on this side of the Atlantic, an Associated Press survey shows. Often the controls have been less successful in Europe than in the United States.

The rate of inflation is still worse in Britain, France, Spain, Italy, Denmark and Finland than in America.

In Britain, for example, Prime Minister Edward Heath's government followed the Nixon lead last November and introduced the nation's toughest wage and price controls in its peacetime history. Inflation then was running at 9 per cent a year. It is still running now at 9.2 per cent a year.

Worse still, food prices have been rising faster in Britain under the controls than they were before. Last year food prices were rising at a rate of 3.4 per cent annually. This year they are rising at about 15 per cent a year.

Britain may be a special case. Much of the food price boost was caused by the nation's entry into the European Common Market on Jan. 1. Also, in this trading nation, imported food and raw materials are exempt from the price controls. And Britain must import 51 per cent of its food and raw materials.

But the pattern is not much different in other countries which don't have Britain's special problems.

In France, the controls are voluntary. The government has recommended a limit of 7 per cent a year on wage raises. But even Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing admits wages are now rising at a rate of 12 per cent annually.

Some countries have rejected wage and price controls as unworkable or as politically unacceptable. Spain and Italy are examples. In both nations inflation is now a worse problem.

In Italy the annual rate of inflation is nearly 14 per cent, up from 8 per cent last year. In Spain it is about 12 per cent, up from 8.7 per cent.

Belgium has compulsory price controls, yet inflation there is the country's worst since the Korean War, rising at about 8 per cent a year.

West Germany has so far avoided both an extreme of no controls at all and the other extreme of strict wage and price curbs. Yet the country's inflation rate is growing at 7.8 per cent a year, a postwar record.

So far in Western Europe this year two of the best performances were recorded by the Netherlands and Norway, both with inflation rates of 7.8 per cent. Neither has extensive wage and price controls. But in both countries the cost of living is still rising at more than twice the rate of inflation in the United States during the most successful period of the Nixon controls.

Israel Against E. Germany Entry

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Israel is unhappy over the imminent entry of East Germany into the United Nations and seems certain to vote against its membership bid.

"East Germany has not recognized the necessity for reparations to the Jews for Nazi crimes," Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah told an interviewer Monday. "It has identified itself with the most extreme Arab attitude and supported actively the Arab terrorist organizations."

The Security Council is expected to take up the membership applications of both East and West Germany on Thursday. Israel is not a member of the 15-nation Security Council, but will be able to vote when the General Assembly considers the Germanys in September. The council is expected to recommend to the assembly that both be admitted, raising U.N. membership to 134 nations. Aside from Israel, no opposition is expected.

The admission of the Germanys has been carefully orchestrated by the two German governments and the Big Four powers of World War II — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France. Tekoah said that unlike the West Germans, who have paid reparations to the Jews for the Nazi outrages, the East Germans have rejected all suggestions to act in a similar way. The Israeli ambassador, interviewed at his closely-guarded offices near U.N. headquarters, said he expected no Mideast breakthroughs from the meeting of President Nixon with Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

He said the Security Council's full-dress review had strengthened the Israeli view that the only way out of the Mideast deadlock is by direct negotiations. The council has suspended the debate until mid-July to see if anything emerges from the Nixon-Brezhnev talks and to give delegations time to consider their next moves. The review was requested by Egypt over Israeli objections that nothing constructive would come of it.

Do-It-Yourself . . . Something New on TV

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Lurking behind the murky title of public access is a budding revolution in do-it-yourself television on the cable systems.

From New York City to Orlando, Fla., to Bakersfield, Calif., people are going into cable television studios to produce their own shows or borrow portable video equipment to record documentaries and entertainment.

Controversies are already developing over how free and open it should be and how it should be funded. The Federal Communications Commission last year ordered that in the top 100 markets the cable systems should make one channel available free for public access.

Programs have ranged from reasoned discussions of community issues to amateur musical recitals to on occasion anything goes, including a graphic demonstration of a folk remedy for hemorrhoids.

William Bresnan, president of TelePrompTer Corp. and outgoing chairman of the National Cable Television Association which is meeting at the Convention Center here, said "Access creates a real paradox."

"We see many advantages to giving the public true access to a communications medium for the first time. But the present rules don't really lend themselves well to true access."

"The cable operators are responsible. We are liable for slander. We are ordered by the FCC not to allow obscenities and at the same time ordered not to censor."

A housewife with four children, Verda Swain, runs the Bakersfield channel and mans a storefront center. She holds weekly rap sessions on public access and teaches the amateur producers to operate the video equipment.

Bresnan said he supports a proposal that public access be funded by a 2 per cent levy on the gross revenues of the cable systems.

A black and white photograph of a rug with a repeating geometric pattern of interlocking stars and diamonds. The pattern is composed of dark, textured shapes on a lighter background, creating a complex, tessellated design. The stars are eight-pointed and interlock with diamond shapes. The overall effect is a high-contrast, textured surface.

Police, Rioters Battle In Santiago Streets

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The government has insisted that police battled thousands of riot police Salvador Allende's opponents in the streets Tuesday night at the end of a demonstration demanding settlement of a strike at the world's largest underground copper mine.

Police hurled tear gas at rock-throwing demonstrators in a 45-minute melee along Bernardo O'Higgins Avenue, the capital's main street.

At the height of the fighting, troops armed with submachine guns and wearing gas masks ran onto the street to guard the entrances to the Defense Ministry, which fronts on O'Higgins Avenue.

The violence exploded as thousands were leaving a rally sponsored by the opposition Christian Democrat party four blocks from the Presidential Palace. They were protesting the way Allende's Socialist regime has handled the walkout at the El Teniente copper mine, now 62 days old.

Allende was presiding at a National Security Council meeting in the palace when the rally began. Government sources said the miners' strike was among the topics on the agenda but did not say if he was aware of the demonstration.

Negotiations to end the strike broke down over the weekend.

AXED TO DEATH — Two young men studying to be teachers in religious schools were stabbed and axed to death on the grounds of the school in Maywood, Ill., where they had taken summer jobs. They were bound and murdered in their living quarters of a small private grammar school, the Alcuin Montessori school in this Chicago suburb. Their apartment had been ransacked and their wallets were found empty. They were identified as Robert Erfourth, 23, Lincoln Park, Mich., left, and David Hammes, 20, Milwaukee, Wis. (R). Two suspects have been arrested and charged with murder. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Skylab Trio Packing for Return

HOUSTON (UPI) — Like a family leaving a vacation home, Skylab 1 astronauts today prepared to move goods ranging from film to strawberries to their Apollo space ferry for the trip back to earth Friday.

When they are finished, commander Charles "Pete" Conrad promised that the house-sized orbiting laboratory would be "fit in all respects" for the arrival of its next tenants, the Skylab 2 astronauts, on July 27.

Before beginning the moving operation, Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz scheduled a 17-minute televised news conference. It was to begin at 6:18 a.m. EDT.

The astronauts, now in their 26th day of flight around earth, plan to have all the gear they will bring home stowed in the Apollo command module by this evening.

"It looks like we're progressing very nicely toward wrapping this mission up," said flight director Milton Windler. The pilots will begin the final deactivation procedures Thursday to prepare the ship's many systems for five weeks of hibernation until Skylab 2 astronauts Alan L. Bean, Owen

K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma arrive to spend eight weeks in orbit.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz are scheduled to undock from Skylab at 4:45 a.m. Friday, begin their final braking maneuver at 9:11 a.m. and splash down at 9:50 a.m. in the Pacific 830 miles southwest of San Diego. Weathermen predicted good landing conditions.

The pilots' list of goods to be transferred from Skylab to Apollo included samples of Skylab food scientists want to compare with identical specimens on the ground to see if the space food was affected by high temperatures early in the flight. The foods to be brought back are sugar coated corn flakes, strawberries, chocolate instant breakfast, shrimp cocktail, scrambled eggs and tuna salad spread.

Also coming back are some drugs that Kerwin, America's first space physician, believes were spoiled by the 130-degree temperatures inside Skylab before the astronauts arrived.

Controllers asked the pilots to bring back 1/4-inch nickel balls they made in a unique ball bearing manufacturing experiment, some weld samples and a stainless steel tube that was joined to a sleeve in a process called brazing.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz broke the Soviet Union's 24-day space endurance record Monday and Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Shatalov sent them a message, relayed by mission control Tuesday, congratulating them on their "achievements in conquering outer space."

"Wishing you successful completion of your program and a safe return to our beautiful blue planet earth," the message said.

The astronauts also will be bringing back 1/4-inch nickel balls they made in a unique ball bearing manufacturing

UMW Official Convicted in Yablonski Death

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Albert Pass, the highest United Mine Workers official yet charged in the case, was convicted of first degree murder Tuesday in the killings of union rebel Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and his family. The prosecution promised to make "at least one more arrest."

"We do not intend to stop with this conviction," said Special Prosecutor Richard Sprague. "It was obvious from the trial testimony someone in Washington gave the green light to Pass."

Pass, 54, Middlesboro, Ky., faces life imprisonment on three murder counts in the Dec. 31, 1969, shooting deaths of Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Sprague previously charged that former UMW President William J. "Boss" McLean was involved in the plot to murder Yablonski, who was killed three weeks after election. Sprague declined to name further suspects in a post trial news conference Tuesday.

"Whatever news we take will speak for itself," he said. Pass was accused of converting a $20,000 union organizing loan from Boyle into a murder fund by having the money kicked back from Tennessee and Kentucky coal miners in District 19, of which he had been financial secretary. He also represented the district on the UMW International Executive Board.

The conviction was delivered by a jury of seven men and five women after five hours of deliberation. The trial lasted 15 days, including two hours of defense testimony.

Pass, a stocky, balding man, stared with his head held high as each of the polled jurors said "guilty of murder in the first degree." As he was led from the nearly empty courtroom he waved to several family members, including his wife and son.

"We haven't given up," Mrs. Beulah Mae Pass said. "We know he isn't guilty."

Defense attorney Harold Goldman said he would appeal the verdict "by Friday."

Three other men, including former field organizer William J. Prater, have been convicted of first degree murder in the case. A woman and two men, one of them a former UMW local president, have confessed. None has been sentenced on state charges.

Prater, who wrote a confession the day after his March 26 conviction, was the key witness against Pass, his longtime colleague. Prater pleaded guilty to a federal charge of interfering with Yablonski's civil rights by having him killed and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Two million persons would turn out to greet the 77-year-old Peron when his chartered Argentine jetliner arrives from Madrid at Ezeiza International Airport.

Another Boom Travel Year Seen for Americans

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Wherever they go, American tourists can expect to pay more than last year to travel abroad in 1973 because of the recent devaluation of the U.S. dollar and revaluation of other major world currencies.

The increased expenditures include transportation, hotels, meals, entertainment, sight-seeing, shopping, museum admissions and just about everything else connected with travel.

But even though their dollars will buy less than before, travel experts expect millions of Americans to go trooping off to Europe, Asia and other destinations around the world.

Stephen S. Halsey, senior vice president and general manager of the travel division of American Express, cited as a precedent the travel boom of recent years in even while anticipating American dollars will keep a tighter grip on their bankrolls.

While the final figures are not in yet, industry sources have estimated that a record-breaking 6 million Americans went overseas and spent about $6 billion last year.

"I am extremely optimistic about 1973 and the new and expanding tour programs we will be offering," Halsey said.

"We will have more than 90 different tours to Europe from include transportation, hotels, 10 gateway cities in the United States alone and our total tour program will include more than 119 world-wide destinations, making it the largest total ever offered by American Express."

Another optimist, Robert Pitt, executive vice president of Diners Clubs' international division, said:

"Changes in the monetary exchange rate won't keep Americans home. The tourism industry, here and abroad, is of the travel division of American Express, cited as a precedent the travel boom of recent years in even while anticipating American dollars will keep a tighter grip on their bankrolls."

Joel M. Abels, editor-publisher of Travel Trade magazine, said in an article recently: "Devaluation of the U.S. dollar should not be a serious deterrent to travel and, with the continuing gains in our nation's economic health and the public's increasing acceptance of the travel syndrome, travel abroad and within the U.S. should reach new highs in 1973."

Spokesmen for major U.S. and foreign international airlines also expressed confidence in the future market. Pan Am, TWA, Braniff, SAS and Air France reported no apparent effects on advance bookings as a result of the realignment of world currencies.

A spokesman for Japan Air Lines, however, said it was too early to make predictions. Prices in Japan have skyrocketed in recent months as a result of inflation and the floating of the yen.

Some major wholesalers, including Cartan Travel Bureau, Inc., have announced they are holding to previously published price lines on land portions of certain package tours to Europe and Israel. On the other hand, American Express will increase prices by 3 per cent on land packages featured in its 1973 Europe, World and Europe Charter tour books beginning May 1.

Transatlantic air fares were raised 6 per cent on April 15 to compensate for the dollar devaluation and changes in value of other currencies for Americans flying member airlines of the International Air Transport Assn. (IATA). Fares vary according to the time of the year, class of service, and category, such as excursion, group or individual travel, and youth. Rates on other routes also will be higher.

The "lowest jet fares to Europe by any scheduled airlines" again are offered by Icelandic Airlines, which is not a member of IATA. Icelandic flies daily flights between New York and Luxembourg, and one flight weekly to London and three to Copenhagen.

You can save even more money on airfares to major cities in Europe by flying Travel Group Charter (TGC). But bookings and a deposit of 25 per cent of the expected minimum fare must be made at least 95 days before the scheduled date of departure. The balance of the fare, which may be increased up to 20 per cent if the plane is not sold out, must be paid 60 days before the departure date.

If you intend to do a lot of traveling on your own in Europe, you might consider taking advantage of special fares offered by its railroads. By purchasing a Eurailpass before leaving the United States, the American can travel up to 100,000 miles in a dozen West European countries for $140.

The pass also entitles the bearer to free transportation on ferries, steamers and buses in addition to other travel bonuses.

The $140 buys 21 days of unlimited first-class rail travel—including the crack Trans-Europe Express (TEE) trains—in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland and West Germany. There also are one-month passes for $175, two months for $245 and three months for $275. Children aged 4-12 pay half fare.

British railroads also offer special discounted passes at savings over regular fares.

There are other ways Americans can help stretch their travel dollars. Here are some suggestions:

—Check on free offers or special discounts which may be offered in countries on your itinerary by tourist boards or promotion agencies. For example, if you begin or end your trip to Europe in Brussels on a direct, scheduled transatlantic flight, the Belgian National Tourist Office offers free Bonus usually is not necessary to give

Days certificates worth more than $60.

—Before departure, convert most of your dollars into U.S. traveler checks, bank drafts or letters of credit. Travelers checks probably are as safe as anything and convenient as anything since they are protected against loss or theft and merchants in some European countries give discount on purchases made with the checks.

—Or consider buying traveler checks in foreign currencies if you are worried about the dollar weakening during your travels. They are available at banks and foreign exchange dealers in British pounds, Swiss francs, West German marks, Japanese yen among others.

—Buy a small packet of foreign currency before departure to cover transportation, tips and other expenses on arrival.

—Learn something about tipping practices. If by night operators. When in doubt, check them out with the direct, scheduled transatlantic flight, the Belgian National Tourist Office offers free Bonus usually is not necessary to give anything extra unless the chambermaid, concierge, hall porter or waiter provided some special service. Otherwise tip as you would at home, in a percentage basis; 15 per cent is average for meals, etc.

—Convert dollars and traveler checks at banks whenever possible for the best rate of exchange. The hotel may be more convenient but will usually charge higher commissions. And don't cash more than for immediate needs since converting the surplus will cost you money.

—Check large stores for tax-free export purchases. In France, for instance, this can be important.

—Check out all-inclusive package tours — retail and wholesale tour operators offer all kinds of individual travelers and groups. Make sure to do business only with established, reputable travel and tour agencies. Watch out for the fly-by-night operators. When in doubt, check them out with the direct, scheduled transatlantic flight, the Belgian National Tourist Office offers free Bonus usually is not necessary to give

Signs of Happiness Finally Emerging

Surviving Dionnes Mark Birthday

ST. BRUNO, Quebec (UPI) — Between 4:20 and 5:20 on the morning of May 28, 1934, in a small town buried in the northern Ontario backwoods, 25-year-old Elzire Dionne became the one in every 57 million mothers to give birth to quintuplets.

"What will people think of us," she said. "They will think we are pigs."

The father, Oliva, a farmer with an annual cash income of about $100, worried about the five more mouths he suddenly had to feed.

And the country doctor, looking at the five small girls, predicted they would never survive the night.

Exactly 39 years later, in another small town just a dozen miles outside of Montreal, three surviving sisters of the now famous Dionne quintuplets celebrated their birthday.

Annette, happily married to an energetic finance company executive, is the mother of three lively boys—Jean-Francois, Charles and Eric—aged 11 to 14. With a 10-room house, a full-size family and a garden to mind, she still finds time for her daily two-mile walk and a few courses in physical fitness.

Cecile, too, is a busy housewife with three boys—Claude, Patrice, and Bertrand—roughly the same ages as Annette's children, as well as 10-year-old Elizabeth.

She admits "it takes a lot of patience and courage to raise children without a father." It was eight years ago that she separated from her husband, sound technician Philippe Langlois, only a couple of years after one of their twin sons, Bruno, died following 15 months of hopeless deformity since birth.

"I have learned that it is useless to cry over what has happened in the past, to have regrets," Cecile once said. "It is better to take it the way it comes and go on."

Yvonne, who never married, is now working in a kindergarten after three vain attempts to become a nun, two trips to Europe, a visit to India and several years as an artist.

The fourth sister Emilie, was 19 when she suffocated during an epilepsy attack in a remote nun's rest home in 1954. The fifth sister, Marie, a separated mother of two, lived so alone that when she died of natural causes in a Montreal apartment in 1970, it was three days before her body was discovered. The quint's embittered parents live 300 miles away in Callander, Ontario. They have not been close for at least two decades.

What happened between these two small towns and those 39 years is a story which only now shows signs of ending in happiness.

Within 48 hours of their birth, a worried and confused Papa Dionne had agreed by phone to exhibit the quintuplets at the Chicago World's Fair. He insisted the quint's not be moved without doctor's approval, however.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo said it would take months, maybe years, before the babies could travel.

The contract was promptly cancelled, but the Ontario Provincial Government decreed the quint's a ward of the state; in effect, turned them over to Dr. Dafeo for upbringing, and set up a $1 million trust fund to be divided among the girls on their 21st birthday.

For the next seven years, Papa Dionne fought with the doctor for custody of the children. Dr. Dafeo abandoned his practice, and had great plans for the quintuplets.

Sheltered in a government-built home, the Dionne babies played and grew up as 5 million tourists filed past the supposedly one-way glass in their playground to peer at them. The girls, distressed by the shadows of the onlookers which they heard and felt, began to dress differently and avoid all appearances.

A whole industry grew up around the Dionne quint's—hotels, restaurants, motor courts, gas stations, bus lines and concession shops selling "authentic" souvenirs. It was estimated the government made $4 million in gasoline taxes alone.

Public opinion eventually swayed to Oliva's side and a 1941 act by the Ontario legislature took the quint's away from Dr. Dafeo. He died two years later, without ever collecting the $15 fee for the birth.

For the next 10 years, the girls grew up behind a seven-foot barbed wire fence which enclosed the new Dionne estate at Callander.

The estate was described by some as little more than a glorified prison. At times, the quint's were heavily guarded for fear of kidnapping. They had little contact with the outside world.

In a 1963 magazine autobiography, the sisters complained of a "painfully unhappy" childhood, living slave-like lives, separated from the other eight brothers and sisters, drenched by their parents "with a sense of having sinned from the hour of birth."

In 1954, just a few months before their 20th birthday, came the tragic death of Emilie. She had suffered since childhood from a combination of epilepsy, hormone imbalance and glandular trouble.

Cecile and Yvonne started nurses training in Montreal, while Annette took music courses for a few years. Marriage came to Annette and Cecile in 1957, and to Marie two years later.

But after several years, Marie's life with provincial government excise expert Florian Houe broke up. Friends said that after their legal separation, Marie retreated into the reserved shell from which she had so belatedly emerged. Profound depression left her unable to cope with day-to-day problems, and "forced her to put her daughters, Monique and Emilie, in a foster home. She eventually agreed to medical care. In February, 1970, the loneliest and saddest of the world's first known quintuplets died.

Marie's funeral brought the Dionne parents and their famous daughters together for the first time since 1957, but the reunion was strained and cold. The estrangement between the quint's and their parents went back to the early 1950s, to the girls' determination to lead their own lives and the subsequent disputes over the $1 million trust fund.

Youth South For Europe Duty

KINGSTON

The Army is looking for young men and women who want to live in Europe, according to Sergeant John Fitzpatrick, local U.S. Army Recruiter.

Young people who select European duty before they enlist are guaranteed at least 16 months in Europe after basic and advanced military training in the United States. They are also guaranteed their choice of one of more than 300 job training courses offered by the Army.

Sgt. Fitzpatrick said his recruiting station has Army job openings for immediate placement in Europe. Applicants may also enlist now and delay their service up to six months under the Delayed Entry Program, the recruiter said.

The Army provides new enlistees with benefits such as free housing, free meals, free medical and dental care, more than four weeks annual vacation, and a starting salary of $307 a month, before taxes. As part of a trial program, men enlisting for Infantry, Armor and Artillery will be eligible for the $2,500 cash bonus if they enlist by June 30.

Additional information about the Army's European Enlistment Option is available from Sergeant Fitzpatrick at the recruiting station on Broadway and Maiden Lane in Kingston.

Shop-Rite Introduces Ground-Rite Beef & Soy Protein Mix*

The taste and the price are right.

A nutritious answer to rising meat prices.

We're introducing Ground-Rite Beef & Soy Protein Mix for one good reason: to offer you more nourishing, tasty food at less cost per serving than regular ground beef.

Ground-Rite Beef & Soy Protein Mix is a special blend of ground beef (not less than 70% by weight) and hydrated textured vegetable protein (not more than 30% by weight). The overall fat content does not exceed 23%.

Cheaper than ground beef.

What that all adds up to is a food that is equal to ground beef in protein, has substantially less fat content and costs less per pound.

And we've discovered that most people like its taste as well or better than ground beef.

That's because the essential flavor of ground beef is retained. While the "hydrated textured vegetable protein" (simply a sensible use of the soy bean's well-known high-protein content) absorbs and retains much of the meat flavor and juices.

Cook up a batch and see.

Try Ground-Rite Beef & Soy Protein Mix in your favorite ground beef recipe. From a juicy hamburger to a special casserole. In spaghetti sauce, meat loaf, meatballs, chili, sloppy joes. You'll quickly discover that Ground-Rite Beef & Soy Protein Mix suits your tastes in every way. Appearance, texture and flavor.

And especially price.

It's guaranteed to please.

We're so certain you'll find Ground-Rite Beef & Soy Protein Mix a tasteful and sensible way to reduce your meat budget, we'll give you your money back if you're dissatisfied. Try Ground-Rite Beef & Soy Protein Mix by Shop-Rite. You have everything to gain.

*Ingredients: Ground Beef 70%, Water 20%, Textured Vegetable Protein 10% (soy flour, salt, dehydrated onion, pepper, monosodium glutamate). Not to exceed 23% fat content.

New Tests For Enlistees

KINGSTON Applicants for enlistment into the U.S. Army are undergoing a new series of tests at Armed Forces Entrance and Examining Station (AFES). Current examination revisions, the second since the goal of and announced, are designed to more accurately identify and measure individual potential for various Army job areas.

The new Army Classification Battery (ACB-1973) eliminates duplication of testing by giving virtually all necessary exams at the AFES. Previously many new recruits took the Army Qualification Battery (AQB) at the AFES. They had to undergo a similar six-hour battery of tests at the basic training center reception station to determine Military Occupational Specialty suitability.

Testing at the AFES now takes up to 30 minutes longer, but recruits are relieved of enduring two larger blocks of testing within only a few days, according to Sergeant First Class John Fitzpatrick, U.S. Army representative, Broadway and Maiden Lane.

The new testing scheme was developed by the U.S. Army Research Institute (USARI). According to USARI the new classification battery will assist the Army by more accurately categorizing a aptitude area scores and identifying functional illiterates. The revision was also partially inspired by claims that the old AQB was outdated and culturally biased.

As before, an Army male applicant will begin by taking a general Armed Forces Qualification Test (AFQT). If he passes the initial exam, he then takes the remainder of the ACB. Here is where most of the revisions have been made. All sections of the test booklet two require at least some reading ability, thereby insuring that an applicant who passes non-verbal portions of the AFQT can also assimilate written instructions as will be necessary in Army training.

The USARI expects that ACB-1973 will reduce failure in the Army's Advanced Individual Training courses by about 20 per cent. Failures will be prevented by more effective, early identification of those incapable of passing such courses. The USARI expects resulting improvements in Army enlistment men's training performance to be reflected in an overall increase in manpower strength and quality.

As the Army strives to fill its enlistment quotas with increased quality recruits, the ACB-1973 will provide a more accurate indicator for its success.

Your Horoscope

Thursday, June 21

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager to break up some existing conditions, but if you have been living right you have gotten a good start in a constructive direction and would be wise to pursue the fine projects you have already started. Keep alert to the new formulas being released that help you make much greater progress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Pressuring associates for what ever you want could have dire results, so keep busy at the work expected of you. Choose the best of any social invitations extended to you. Do nothing that can hurt your reputation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle those career matters in almost exact way as you planned to do yesterday and don't permit interruptions from others. A higher-up could be demanding, but do only what you can. Avoid moochers in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You came to new and worthwhile decisions yesterday and should carry through with them carefully today. Make sure you pay your bills, make collections and get into the civic work required of you with vim and vigor.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use your good mature judgment instead of relying on errant hunches to get your problems solved. Try to win the favor of mate approval of what it is you are doing. This can be most helpful to your success.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into the small details of any policy matters you have discussed with associates, and then do the work that is necessary on your part. That public affair could be upsetting, but keep mum. It will all work out fine in the long run.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)

Get busy at that work you promised to do two days ago and you will be accurate with it and you have fine results. Use more modern methods. Try out that new of life. Give dancing and music treatment that can improve your health a good deal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to be with charming people during spare time and show you are a cultured and interesting person. If some friend is in trouble, give a helping hand and build morale. Don't neglect closest ties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take care you do not irk a close home or business tie in carrying through with some big project you have in mind. If you forget prejudice, you can have much success with it. Enlarge your thinking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to improve regular routines so you can free time for more important matters and add to your current income. New ideas are growing in your mind, but don't voice them as yet. Put them to the test for practicality.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study those ideas well so they are truly practical before you try to put them in operation. Get the aid of a clever business expert. The evening is ideal for home pleasures and enjoying kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although you are sure of your aims and how to go after them, you find there are stumbling blocks in the path of your progress. Get rid of them tactfully. Caution in conversations is wise at any social gatherings.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to carefully rearrange ideas and operations so they work out far more successfully. Take right steps concerning personal affairs so you need not worry about them. Show a more humanitarian spirit.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those modern thinking young people with an inquisitive mind and the desire to be of great help to humanity at large through progressive methods.

Barbs

By PHIL PASTORET
Even today, for most gals a wedding ring is a one-man band.

The man who never hears another's troubles usually is one who doesn't stop speaking of his own long enough to hear the other fellow.

Where we're going for our vacation is broke.

WHY WE SAY

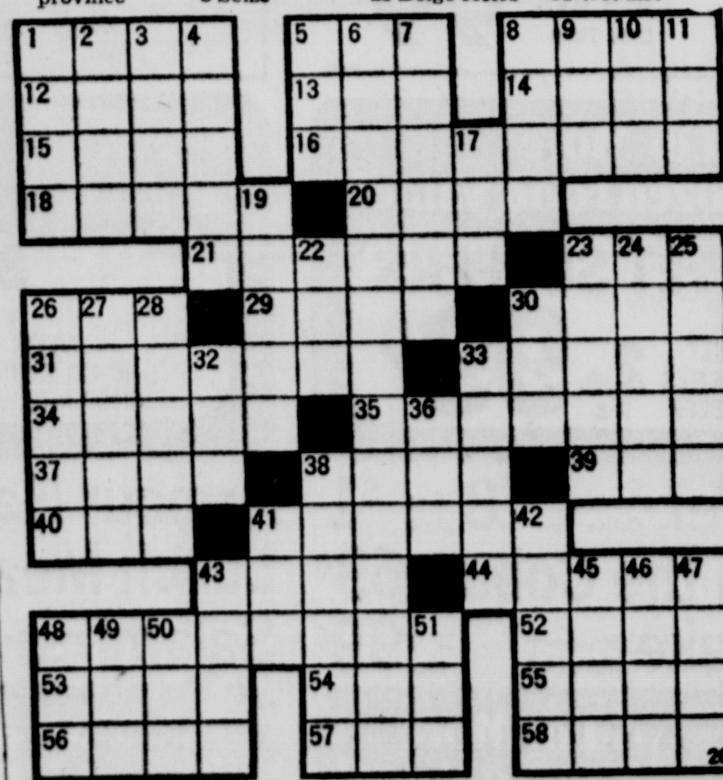

MAGNOLIA

FROM FRENCH: Our typically Southern flower, the magnolia, was named after a French botanist, Pierre Magnol (1683-1715), who did work in classifying it. There are today 35 different species of magnolia. The majority grow in Louisiana and Mississippi (the Magnolia State).

TEEN FORUM

UNFAIR? (Q.) I am the oldest of my sisters. It's getting to bother me that the next oldest is always being looked upon by my parents as different. When we have a fight my parents always yell at me, even if she starts it.

She seems to get away with just about anything. She bosses me around and when I answer her back I get yelled at. They never even listen to my side of the story any more.

When I try to watch TV in Mom's room with her she kicks me out. But my sister spent the whole day with Mom yesterday. Whenever Dad spots something interesting he calls my sister, never me.

She most of the time talks back to my parents and all they do is say they're going to punish her, but they don't. But as soon as I open my mouth I am punished. She throws tantrums and kicks and cries till she gets her own way.

It always works, but if I just ask why, I am in trouble. I usually end up with a bloody lip, never my sister. When I try talking to them I usually get nowhere. Could you please tell me or help me get an understanding with my parents so everything will be OK again. I think they love my sister better than me—Mistreated in Connecticut.

(A.) Year after year I get letters such as yours. I am definitely against favoritism by parents to one child at the expense of others.

I am definitely against brutality by parents. I am definitely against judgments by parents that one child is "good" and one is "bad" and that the treatment of the two children shall be based on that judgment.

But I wonder if you, and other teen-agers like you, could not improve your lot by a few simple steps:

(1.) Recognize that you and your sister ARE different, and that is one of the big reasons why your parents treat you and her differently. Methods that work with her may not work for you, and vice versa.

(2.) And this is very important: Ask yourself if you show your parents that you love them.

(3.) If your answer is no, try giving them a little love. I believe the results will be so striking that you will soon be giving them a lot of love.

(4.) When you talk with them, talk lovingly instead of combatively.

If you will follow these four simple steps, you will be on the road to understanding with your parents. Start now.

Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions or comments to Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.
